

CHURCHILL ARRIVES IN U. S. TO DISCUSS OPENING OF NEW FRONT WITH ROOSEVELT

Sevastopol Holds Out against All German Assaults

Wave after Wave of Nazis Fail To Take Russian Seaport

Soviet Troops Also Holding Firm in the Khar'kov Sector

MOSCOW, Friday, June 19 (AP)—The Soviet defenders of Sevastopol continued to hurl back wave after wave of German attacks, the high command announced today as the besieged Crimean naval fortress began its third week of resistance to Germany's mass offensive.

The midnight communiqué indicated the fighting showed no signs of slackening and said the German losses were heavy.

"The heroic defenders of Sevastopol are unwaveringly repulsing numerous German attacks," the government said.

In various other sectors it was stated officially fighting continued, but there were no essential changes. On the Khar'kov front activity was limited by thunderstorms which drenched the battlefield where the Russians have stood firm against a nine-day German offensive.

Sevastopol Hard Pressed

Sevastopol admittedly was hard pressed by the battering land and air assaults which started June 5, but according to official sources in Moscow the lines had not been penetrated.

"The German high command asserted its troops were winning bitterly defended ground at the Soviet naval base whose fall would remove a threat to the flank of the expected Nazi thrust from the Crimea toward the oil lands of the Caucasus."

"The German communiqué said its shock troops 'stormed the main forts in the northern part of the defense system, including the Maxim Gorky fort, the most modern and strongest bastion of the whole fortress,' and drove through to within two miles of Sevastopol harbor."

"The Germans had claimed earlier that they had seized two great fortifications, Fort Stalin and Fort Siberia. The Russians have never mentioned fortifications by these names in their dispatches."

Red Front Holding

A battlefield dispatch to Pravda, official Communist party newspaper, described the Soviet defense as unyielding with infantry standing at their posts in the face of tank attacks and with point blank artillery fire taking a terrific toll of the Germans.

On a single battlefield the Germans left 1,500 dead in a day, the newspaper declared. Yet, it added, the Germans had grimly continued virtually unceasing attacks since yesterday afternoon.

"The enemy attempted by every means to break through our defense, but failed," the Communist party organ asserted. "Fighting continues in two directions, to the north and south."

German Tanks Fail

"Yesterday afternoon a strong German force supported by tanks and aircraft launched an offensive from the south. Simultaneously the Germans also attacked from another direction. All these enemy attacks were successfully beaten off with heavy losses... even tanks did not help the Germans; they retired, being unable to stand our artillery fire and break the staunchness of our infantry."

On the Khar'kov front, barring the northern route to the Caucasus, the Soviet Information Bureau said the Russians repulsed another of the tank-led infantry attacks by which Field Marshal Gen. Fedor von Bock was attempting to regain lost ground.

Six hundred Germans were reported killed in one attack there and nearly 1,500 in another.

Red Parliament Roars Approval Of Second Front

Supreme Soviet Votes Confidence in British-Russian Pact

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, June 18 (AP)—Thundering a vote of complete confidence, the Supreme Soviet tonight at its first wartime session ceremonially approved the British-Russian treaty after hearing Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov express the deep hope that the "common enemy soon will feel on his own skin the mighty blows" of Russia, Britain and the United States.

Molotov told the cheering Russian Parliament, as Premier-Defense Commissar Joseph Stalin nodded agreement, that the question of a second front in Europe was given "serious attention" both in London and in Washington. In the latter city Molotov concluded a full understanding with the United States on the war and on post-war problems.

Agree on Second Front

"The three great world powers announced on June 11 that they had reached complete understanding on 'the urgent tasks of creating a second front in Europe in 1942.'"

Molotov disclosed that President Roosevelt had cabled an invitation to the trip which resulted in the Washington agreement.

Three Billions U. S. Aid

Molotov revealed that the new agreement with the United States envisaged American aid amounting to $3,000,000,000.

The supreme Soviet officially approved these resolutions:

Two Men Killed For Slaying of Gestapo Hangman

Alleged Assassins of Reinhard Heydrich Shot Down in Church

Shot while Resisting Arrest, Prague Radio Statement Says

LONDON, June 18 (AP)—Two men accused as the assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, No. 1 Gestapo executioner known to millions in occupied Europe as "the hangman," were found in a Prague church this morning and "shot while resisting arrest," the Prague radio announced tonight.

The announcement came two hours after the expiration of a German ultimatum to the Czechs to deliver up the assassins of Heydrich or take the consequences.

The British Broadcasting Corporation told the Czechs in a broadcast from London tonight that the Nazis had "decided to discover" the assassins of Heydrich after realizing that their threats of heavy reprisals were "in vain."

The British broadcast emphasized that the Berlin announcement was issued only two hours after expiration of the ultimatum to the Czechs.

Victory for Czechs

"Embittered and frightened by Czech resistance, the Nazi authorities let themselves indulge in vain and useless threats," the announcer said. "There can be no doubt that the Czech nation has conquered in this fight against the Nazi oppressors."

At least 382 persons, some of them women and girls, have been executed by the Germans in reprisal for the assault on Heydrich and the Nazis have wiped out the village of Lidice, where 350 men of the village were said to have been shot and the women and children transported to other areas.

The official Prague announcement as heard here said the assassins had been dropped by parachute from British planes, and that they had "taken cover in a church and were shot while being arrested."

"At the same time," it was added, "it was possible to dispose of their closest aides and abettors, all of whom were Czech nationals who had been landed in the protectorate by British planes."

The version broadcast by the Berlin radio said the DNB, German news agency, from Prague carried this official statement from Prague:

Super-American Fighter To Meet And Defeat Japs

Combat Engineers To Battle Foes under Name of "Pioneers"

PORT LEWIS, Wash., June 18 (AP)—A super-fighter from the combat engineers is being trained by the United States army to become one of the most heavily-armed soldiers in the world and even more versatile than his British counterpart, the Commando.

If a soldier of the Mikado's army suddenly sees a black-faced knife-wielding warrior jump out of the jungle one of these days, he probably won't have time to realize he is about to become a victim of an American Pioneer, the name of the new super-fighter.

The hard-bitten Pioneer will be called upon to do the initial work of a battle or campaign. He is taught to fight with machetes and wicked, curved bush-knives, as well as with tommy guns and rifles.

Will Be Heavily Armed

As a task force outfit, the Pioneers are armed with rifles, tommy guns, 30 and 50-caliber machine guns, 37-millimeter cannon, axes, bolo-knives, machetes, saws and an ample supply of TNT and other explosives.

Officers training the Pioneers here said that as one of the best and most heavily-armed soldier in the world, the Pioneer would be sent

A DIRECT HIT ON JAPANESE AIRCRAFT CARRIER

American Bomber Command Attains Free China Front

United States Fliers To Battle Reinforced Jap Airforce

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

CHUNGKING, China, June 18 (AP)—Existence of a United States army bomber command in imperiled Free China was disclosed today at a time when the Japanese enemy was heavily reinforcing his air strength to defend his conquest of Burma and attempted to mop up the armies of Chiang Kai-Shek.

Col. Caleb V. Haynes, big, 46-year-old North Carolinian who personally directed the harrowing aerial evacuation of Burma, was named chief of the command. Just where and when the American force will go into action is an important military secret.

Already operating in the China war theater are the "Flying Tigers" of Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's American volunteer group.

Informed estimates of the present aerial dispositions of the Japanese air force in the Burma and Chinese theater makes it seem certain the enemy is expecting some strenuous opposition in the sky, something the Chinese have never been able to provide.

Japs Have Many Planes

The Japanese are reported to have 500 planes in Burma and 300 in China, with a new influx of aircraft about Canton and Hankow in the southeast.

They have aerial reinforcements of the Manchurian theater to the very last, apparently, although they are reported to have restored the Manchurian army to its full strength of thirty-three divisions, approximately 660,000 men, and seem to be awaiting only the propitious moment to attack Siberia. Because of the excellent airdromes in the Manchurian area, the Japs

Stanley Johnston Describes Great Air Battle with Japs in Coral Sea

This is another in a series of stories supplied to the Associated Press by the Chicago Tribune whose foreign correspondent, Stanley Johnston, was the only American newspaperman aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington in the Coral Sea engagement.

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

CHICAGO, June 18 — In her last fight the Lexington was not merely on the receiving end of battle blows. Her airmen, banding with those of the second carrier in our sea-borne air force, delivered a devastating left hook, followed by a right cross to the Japanese chin, almost at the moment when the Japanese were showering their blitz upon us.

To land these blows the Lexington's pilots and air gunners swept through almost 200 miles of fierce, continuous air combats.

The Japanese lost sixty-three planes that day — about thirty per cent of the total involved in both offensive and defensive actions. We lost sixteen, three times more than in any other of the Coral Sea actions. And of these eleven were from the Lexington's squadrons. The remainder fell from those of another carrier. The name of the second carrier may not be mentioned, but for the sake of clarity we will call her United States carrier II.

In my previous stories I told of the opening phases of the five day battle of the Coral Sea, and how our flyers smashed a Japanese carrier of the Rihyokoku class. Then you were told of the Japanese attack upon the Lexington on the morning of May 8. Yesterday's story told how she sank.

With today's story we return once more to the morning of May 8. You may remember that we had observed the presence of the second Japanese pincer prong on the evening of May 7, when nine Japanese planes tried to alight on the Lexington's deck only to be driven off into rain squalls by

Indiana Republicans Call for Defeat Of New Deal in Coming Fall Election

INDIANAPOLIS, June 18 (AP)—Indiana Republicans, meeting in a streamlined convention, called today for total destruction of "the military power of our enemies" and prepared for the fall political campaign on a keynote that the New Deal is the only issue.

"An appeasement peace will only invite another attack," the convention declared in its platform. "Our army, navy and air force, with secure bases, must be maintained at all times stronger than any possible combination of our potential enemies."

New Deal Only Issue

Raymond E. Willis, the state's junior senator, described the New Deal as "the only real issue of this campaign" in the keynote address to the convention, which was marked by the absence of many of the 2,212 delegates. County chairman carried the proxies of most of the absentees.

"With all the terrible fatalities and colossal costs of the present moment," said Senator Willis, "the administration hasn't sacrificed a single New Deal experimental social bureau or agency."

Along this line the platform said: "Warning to People"

"The Republican party warns the people that unless bureaucracy and bureaucratic control are reduced to their true functions, labor, business and the farmer will be regimented out of the American way of life that has made this country the greatest nation on the face of the globe."

Former Senator James E. Watson, now 77, whose attempted political comeback came to grief in the same coliseum four years ago when he was denied the Senatorial nomination, predicted Congress would be forced to levy a sales tax but asserted America should not allow herself to be treated as "an international strawstack, at which all the lean steers of the world shall come to feed."

gunfire from the rest of our fleet. Their presence warned us that we were in for a desperate battle the next day.

Scouts Take Off

Our scouts were off at dawn. They made contact with the Japanese at 8:10 a. m. on May 8. At 9:30 a. m. our dive bombers and torpedo planes with a small fighter escort took the air to blast the Japs.

I cannot sufficiently emphasize the part the weather played in the offensive efforts of our pilots on the Lexington and those of United States carrier II. Overhead were unusually woolly clouds. Under some of them was a curtain of heavy rain. These vapor pillars filled the sky to overflowing without, however, making a solid layer.

The Japanese were fortunate in being in an area of the sea where there was an unusually large number of hard rain squalls. These served to screen parts of their ocean fleet — one squadron of a dozen heavy dive bombers from the Lexington never did find a Japanese target and returned without striking a blow.

Our first contact with the enemy was made by one of the youngest pilots in our scouting force.

The first American attack came when Comm. Bill Ault, leading four heavy dive bombers, and Lieut. (Continued on Page 9, Col. 2)

Japanese Attack On West Coast Held Unlikely

American Victories at Sea Remove Immediate Danger

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The danger of an immediate Japanese attack on the west coast of the United States has greatly diminished, Secretary of War Stimson said today, because recent American successes scattered the enemy fleet "all over the Pacific" and sent it "hustling away as fast as it could in the opposite direction."

He was speaking primarily of the struggle off Midway, in which American air power wrecked such havoc on the Japanese navy.

Recalling that Stimson had previously said an attack on the west coast might be expected, reporters asked him whether recent developments had diminished that threat.

No News from Aleutians

"Temporarily, I should say the threat was much less," he said. "The secretary had little to add to reports of the situation in the Aleutians—a situation which has been obscured by fog and bad weather. The available information indicates, he said, that the Japanese thus far have made a 'very small landing' on the island chain which stretches from Alaska toward Siberia."

All possible information will be made public, Stimson stressed to illustrate the difficulty of getting a clear picture of a sea-air engagement, even when the fighting is

British Premier Crosses Atlantic For Conferences

Will Discuss "Conduct of the War and Winning the War"

Early Says Speculation on Second Front Is Justified

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The White House disclosed tonight that Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain was in the United States again to begin immediate conferences with President Roosevelt on "conduct of the war and the winning of the war."

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early made the announcement and, answering a question whether speculation on a second front was permissible, he declared without the slightest hesitation "I think that is perfectly justified."

Churchill once before, since the United States plunged into the world conflict, had crossed the Atlantic to see Mr. Roosevelt. That was in December, and it resulted in the declaration by the United Nations, to which twenty-eight nations now adhere.

Early would not go into details on the exact nature of the current trip nor would he say whether it was a natural aftermath of the recent all-important conferences which brought the Soviet foreign commissar, V. M. Molotov, to London and Washington. Those two inter-related visits resulted in a joint understanding on the urgent tasks of opening a second front in 1942.

The presidential secretary, telling the press that it was still free, opened the way for wide speculation on the possible relation between the Molotov and Churchill trips to this country. Early called in reporters to tell them.

"Mr. Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain, is again in the United States."

Plan Immediate Conferences

"The prime minister will confer while here with the president. The conferences will begin immediately. 'The subject of the conferences will be very naturally the war, the conduct of the war and the winning of the war.'"

Accompanying Britain's wartime leader were General Sir Alan Williams; Major General Sir Hastings Ismay; Brigadier General G. M. Stewart; Sir Charles Wilson; John Martin, secretary to Churchill; and Commander C. V. R. Thompson, a secretary and aide to the prime minister.

"I do not anticipate any further statements by the president or by the prime minister this week," Early remarked.

He could not say the manner in which Churchill came to this country nor did he have anything to disclose on the possible length of his stay.

For their momentous deliberations the chiefs of the two great English-speaking nations were afforded the utmost seclusion and secrecy.

It was too early to predict whether any concrete announcements might be anticipated from this second Churchill visit to the United States.

Second Front Looms

But it appeared obvious that momentous decisions were in the making and Secretary Early did nothing to detract from the idea that the opening of a second front in Europe was uppermost in the conversations.

The previous Roosevelt-Churchill meetings, which might be taken as affording precedents, resulted in announcements of world importance. They met at sea last August, before the United States entered the war, and from that meeting emerged the historic Atlantic charter setting forth their hopes for a post-war world.

House Approves Huge Expenditure For New Warships

Votes 316 to 0 to Pay $8,550,000,000 for Big Fleet

By ALEX SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—An unprecedented $8,550,000,000 warship construction measure sailed swiftly through the House today in a drive to make the United States fleet stronger by the end of 1946 than the combined navies of all the rest of the world.

The vast program, calling for more than 500 fighting ships in the cruiser-carrier-destroyer category and hundreds of torpedo boats and subchasers, was passed and sent to the Senate by a vote of 316 to 0.

It came as the answer of this nation's naval strategists to the long-debated question of the plane versus the battleship, for the measure's emphasis was placed squarely on floating aerial strength and it omitted any provision for new battleships.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the Naval committee told the House that the value of the carrier had proven "relatively much greater" in modern sea warfare than the battleship.

In his broad outline of the measure's scope, Vinson said the navy planned to begin construction of the carriers and the anti-submarine craft immediately. The smaller boats, he said, would be built inland, on the gulf, the great lakes, in the Mississippi valley—"wherever there are facilities available."

A question from the floor as to what the Navy was doing to convert 10,000 ton merchant men, now being built in forty-six days, into carriers, drew from Vinson the response:

"I'll go as far as I can. I can say that a great many ships of that type are being converted."

But he added that they had limited value—undoubtedly because of their inability to afford take-off and landing space for the heavier pursuit bombers.

Will Dominate Two Oceans

Vinson said, however, that the converted carriers, fighting ships now being converted into carriers under construction, and those contemplated in the new program would give American naval forces "complete domination" in the Atlantic and Pacific.

British Eighth Army Withdraws In 2 Sections on Tobruk Front

By EDWARD KENNEDY

CAIRO, June 18 (AP)—Split by twenty-five days of hammering by powerful Axis armored forces, the British Eighth army withdrew to new positions today, one section taking up fortified places near the Egyptian border while the other fell back into the defensive perimeter of Tobruk to defend that Libyan coastal stronghold against violent siege.

Only the shore road remained as a tenuous link between Tobruk and the British main body.

With that exception the situation nearly duplicated that which existed during almost eight months of last year when Tobruk, holding firm on the flank against every assault,

House Committee Favors Refund Of Part of Excess Profits Tax

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The House Ways and Means committee agreed in principle today on post-war refund of part of corporate excess profits which would be taxed at a flat ninety-four percent rate under provisions of the pending tax bill.

The rate of the refund and the uses to which it might be put were left for later determination.

Informed members said the committee appeared presently to favor a refund of fourteen percent which would have the long-range effect of reducing the proposed excess profits rate to eighty percent.

A question to be considered is whether the rebate should be used for conversion of war plants to peace-time production, or whether

Friends Defend Nelson in War Production Tiff

Connally and Others Re-sent Report of Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Heated protests that Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the War Production Board was "being put on the spot" greeted a committee's report to the Senate today that there had been "damaging delays" in converting some industries to a war basis.

The committee demanded changes in both the organization and personnel of some of WPB's branches. Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex.), only one of the ten senators on the special defense investigating group who voted against the report, inquired:

"What good does it do for a Senate committee to come in here and kick somebody around?"

Declaring Nelson was doing a "stupendous job and doing it well," he said, "I won't throw my friend to the wolves. This matter could have been handled in another way."

Lucas Praises Nelson
Similarly, Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) said, "I have to defend Donald Nelson. I doubt that any man in America could have done a better job up to this time."

Chairman Truman (D-Mo) and several other members of the committee quickly protested that the report was not a personal reflection upon Nelson nor upon the integrity and patriotism of many of the dollar-a-year men working for WPB. Truman had told the Senate that a painstaking study of all WPB orders showed there was some substance to charges by Robert R. Guthrie, former WPB official who resigned March 14, that some dollar-a-year officials were impeding and delaying the war production program because of private interests.

Nelson Asked Inquiry
Truman and Senators Mead (D-Ny), Brewster (R-Me) and Burton (R-Ohio) recalled that Nelson had asked the inquiry into Guthrie's charges, adding that the committee must make a report on its findings even though this was unpleasant. They joined Connally and Lucas in lauding Nelson's accomplishments.

At WPB, a spokesman said there would be an "extensive organizational reassignment" of the agency within a month which would abolish some jobs. This official said the expected changes were not the result of criticism by the Senate group, but in some respects might follow committee suggestions.

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Announcement that Paul Miller will become chief of bureau in Washington was made by Kent Cooper, General manager of the Associated Press, today.

protector SS Upper Group Leader Heydrich were discovered in the early morning hours of June 18th in a Prague church and were shot while resisting arrest.

"The result of investigations made by the secret state police in Prague showed that the murderers had been hiding in the church for some time. All the murderers and the people involved in the murder were Czech nationals who were dropped from British planes over the protectorate with orders to commit murder."

Heydrich, whose thirty-eight years had spanned a turbulent career of bloodshed and hatred, was wounded in an attack on his automobile near Prague on May 27.

The Nazis charged that it was an anti-tank bomb of British make that wounded him.

The reprisal executions began immediately and top ranking German doctors strove to save his life.

Praised by Hitler
He died in Prague June 4. The wave of executions mounted higher.

Heydrich was buried with eulogies by his chief, Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo head, and his fuhrer, Adolf Hitler.

Hitler called him "one of our martyrs" and conferred his name upon the standard of the sixth SS (elite guard) Infantry.

Himmler vowed vengeance—and on June 10, the day after the funeral, the Nazis swept away the entire village of Lidice on the ground that the assassins of Heydrich had found shelter there at one time in their flight.

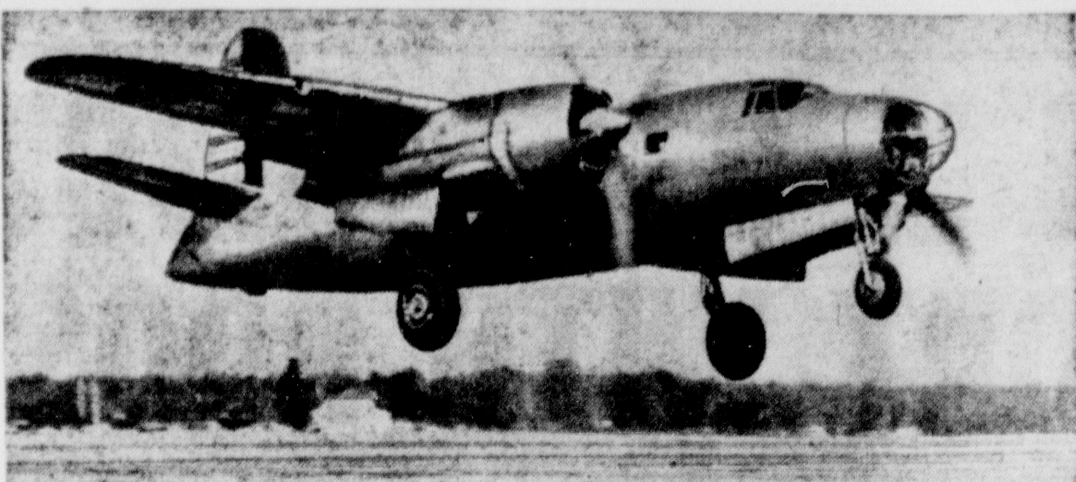

The execution reached a faster tempo.

The Germans offered to pardon anyone giving information about his slayers but the executions kept on.

Then last Monday it was reported that the Germans had given the Czechs in all Bohemia and Moravia until today to deliver up the slayers of Heydrich or take the consequences, which were not specifically stated.

The executions continued until the total stood as of June 17 at 382 in addition to the men of Lidice.

This Is the Plane Praised by Army Air Chief

An important role in the recent battles of Midway and the Aleutian Islands has been played by Martin B-26 bombers similar to the one above shown as it is about to land. Speaking of these planes Gen. H. H. Arnold, army air chief, said: "In the Aleutian Islands a group of B-26s made three attacks on the main Japanese task force, sinking a cruiser and scoring two hits with torpedoes besides dropping a torpedo on the deck of a carrier."

Eastman Requests Postponement of All County Fairs

Transportation Director Also against Non-Essential Meetings

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Deferment of all state and county fairs, as well as non-essential conventions and meetings for the duration of the war was requested today by Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director.

Asserting that "there is good reason to hope" that government controls over travel can be avoided, provided civilians restrict their use of trains and buses, Eastman likewise cautioned against pleasure trips other than vacations.

On the grounds that delays, crowded and scarcity of accommodations are inevitable because of the increasing burdens of transportation facilities, Eastman asked that civilians defer any mass movements not closely connected with the war effort and that, in the case of meetings related to the war program, attendance should be skeletonized along the lines of the example set by the American Legion in its forthcoming convention.

"Postpone all state and county fairs," he said. "Farmers should not be encouraged to use, for non-essential purposes such as these, the tires which are so necessary to their livelihood and so necessary to provide a continuing food supply. Nor should they transfer the burden of such travel to public carriers."

Bartenders To Aid In War Effort

BOSTON, June 18 (AP)—The man behind the bar will help the man behind the gun.

Greater Boston bartenders have been asked by their union to aid propaganda researchers of the Massachusetts committee on public safety by reporting "rumors, underground talk and gossip of a demoralizing nature to union headquarters."

Such stories will then be checked with the Axis shortwave broadcasts. The state committee declares that more than three-quarters of such demoralizing stories have, in the past, been traced back to English-language propaganda broadcasts from enemy shortwave stations.

When research has established the falsity of such gossip by tracing it to enemy sources, the origin of the stories then will be exposed.

May Attack Siberia

The recent enemy attacks on Midway Island and the Aleutians are interpreted in some quarters as preparations for attack on Siberia. The Japanese, it is believed, wanted to eliminate the possibility of a United States attack from the east in the event of hostilities with Russia. The main thing they are waiting for is an indication that the Russians are weakening in their fight with Germany.

Meanwhile informed persons will not be surprised if the Japanese merely press consolidation of the victories they have won.

Near Original Goal

On the Chekiang-Kiangsi front in southeastern China the enemy had less than fifty miles to go to complete the occupation of the 450-mile railway which loops through the two provinces. The Chinese high command said that the Japanese column moving from the west had reached the railway town of Kweiwei by a detour and that the column approaching from the east was continuing to advance from Shanghai. These towns are in eastern Kiangsi.

A third column was thrusting southward toward Fukien province from Kwangfeng in eastern Kiangsi. Already it had advanced eight miles and apparently was headed for Chinese inland bases in Fukien. In this province the Japanese are in occupation of the port of Amoy but they have been thwarted in attempts to penetrate the region around Fuzhou from the sea.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
AP Staff Writer

Allied and Axis accounts from the Libyan battlefield agree that the British have suffered a setback; but just how serious depends on which version is nearer the truth. Berlin accounts say Britain's Eighth army has been slashed in two, part of it falling back into Tobruk's defenses and the rest fleeing eastward toward Bardia and the Egyptian border.

Cairo advices confirm the apparent separation of the British into two forces, one to hold Tobruk and the other to protect a coastal road still connecting that port with Egypt. However, they picture the British retreat from El Adem and Reegen junctions, south and southeast of Tobruk, as planned withdrawals to stronger defense positions.

British Position Difficult

There is no question that the British position has become more difficult. The withdrawal has apparently left the direct interior road to Solum, just beyond the border in Egypt, open for an enemy advance eastward, bypassing Tobruk. It also imposes on British mobile forces the difficult task of keeping open the eighty miles of coastal road from Tobruk to Bardia to Solum unless Tobruk is again to be abandoned to stand siege unsupported except by sea.

So far as the immediate British dispositions can be made out, the new retreat has whittled down the Libyan outpost positions for defense of Egypt to Tobruk and the slender 80-mile finger-width span along the coast covering the coastal road. It seems too vulnerable a front to warrant hope that a land supply route for Tobruk can long be kept open.

About the only cheer in the situation seems to be the fact that Tobruk has already successfully withstood an eight-month Axis siege and has just been resupplied to some extent by the convoy which reached it from Alexandria. It appears doomed to another grim stand, so long as it does hold out, can be supplied and reinforced at night by sea, it seems improbable that an Axis thrust into Egypt could gain great momentum.

Air Odds Changed

One or two other encouraging factors should be noted. The Axis commander, General Rommel, lacks one vital advantage he had when he last placed Tobruk under futile siege. His planes then dominated the air over the battle front. The air odds have been evened if not shifted to favor the British since then.

Rommel's forces have now been on the attack constantly for nearly four weeks. They are getting farther from their supply bases with every step eastward and their extending communication lines are increasingly vulnerable to air attack.

Yet, the situation is none too bright for the British. London's concern is apparent, with indications that Prime Minister Churchill may soon face another storm of criticism in Parliament over his war management.

Art Treasures Buried In Frederick Vault

FREDERICK, Md., June 18 (AP)—Priceless art treasures, so packed that they looked more like a shipment of oil barrels, were under special guard today in a subterranean vault constructed in the swimming pool of the Frederick armory.

The busts and glassware, transported by van from the Walters art galleries in Baltimore, were sealed in large cans before they were sent to Frederick.

Tomorrow workmen will place a reinforced concrete slab over the top of the vault, sealing it for the duration of the war. Until then, specially deputized watchmen will guard the treasures.

Approximately half of the armory pool was walled off as a repository for the museum collection. Five concrete walls helped close off the section selected.

Governor's Yacht Is Loaned to Navy For the Duration

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 18 (AP)—The 180-foot executive yacht used by Maryland's governors since 1932, which now carries a service crew from the first World War, will go to battle again.

The Navy has formally accepted loan of the Du Pont for the duration, Governor O'Connor said today, and the yacht will be placed in coast guard service.

The use of the ship was offered by the governor some time ago and Naval authorities said they could restrict its operation to waters adjacent to Maryland if desired.

O'Connor said he would place no restrictions upon its use. The ship will be placed in active service as soon as the coast guard and tidewater fisheries department signs an agreement providing for return of the ship to Maryland at the end of the war, O'Connor explained.

The DuPont, formerly the Nokomis, was built at Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1914 at a cost exceeding $300,000. Originally a steam yacht, it was converted to an oil-burner in 1923.

Conscientious Objectors Good Farm Workers

HAGERSTOWN, Md., June 18 (AP)—The work of 120 conscientious objectors to military service has won the praise of scores of Washington county farmers, Wilbur H. Stephenson, district conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service, reported.

The boys, whose religious principles forbid combat service, have been employed principally on the fencing of pastures, since the county is a livestock raising center.

Stephenson said numerous farmers had expressed themselves as highly pleased with the work of the boys, most of whom have had experience in agricultural work.

Approximately 110 farms in Washington already have been surveyed by the Soil Conservation Service and work assigned to the boys. They devote forty-four hours each week to work on private property.

The four farm-camps in which the young men are housed, all owned by a religious organization, are located near Lettersburg, Keedysville, Williamsport and Clearspring. Thirty are stationed at each farm.

State Welfare Costs Lowest in Year

BALTIMORE, June 18 (AP)—Maryland's welfare burden in May was the lightest in more than a year.

The monthly report of the state department of public welfare, released today by Director J. Milton Patterson, showed a total relief bill of $668,580 last month, well under the May, 1941, figures and also less than the previous low since then, set last August.

An index compiled to show the trends in the number of cases, based on the average month of the fiscal year from October, 1938, to September, 1939, also showed record twelve-month lows.

The case load index for old age assistance was 95.7, using 100 as the average, against 96.5, last month, and 102.9 last May. The aid to dependent children case index dropped to 73 from 75.2 in April and 87.1 last May. This index has shown a steady decline since a year ago.

Another decline was evident in the public assistance to the needy blind group where the May index figure was 97.5 against 98.3 last month and 105.8 last May.

Teachers To Handle Two Registrations

BALTIMORE, June 18 (AP)—Although summer vacations will have begun Maryland teachers are being counted upon to carry the burden again in the new selective service and gasoline rationing registrations. The new draft registration, for 18 and 19 year olds, will be held June 29 and 30 and the registration for new gas ration books will follow.

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state selective service director, and OPA officials said today that although some outside assistance might be needed during the registrations, the teachers had volunteered to carry the heaviest part of the work.

"We're going to need a few volunteers in some communities," Col. Stanwood said, "but the problem is being handled locally. Even though the majority of teachers will be on vacation, they have responded generously to the need and will be on hand for our draft registration."

Berlin Reports German Advance On Sevastopol

Nazis within Two Miles of Harbor, Radio Broadcast Says

BERLIN (from German broadcasts) June 18 (AP)—The German high command announced today that Sevastopol's Maxim Gorky fort, described by the Nazis as the "most modern and strongest bastion of the whole fortress," had been stormed by German infantrymen and engineers.

This thrust, against the northern part of the Crimean city's defenses, carried the Germans to within two miles of the harbor entrance, the high command added.

"In the battle for Sevastopol," the communique said, "German infantry and engineers, effectively supported by concentric artillery fire and Luftwaffe (air force) operations, stormed the main forts in the northern part of the defense system, including Maxim Gorky fort, most modern and strongest Bastion of the whole fortress."

Report New Advance
"In this sector of the front, the attack thereby was carried forward to a point only three kilometers (two miles) from the harbor entrance to the fortress."

The high command declared that German and Romanian troops had driven the Russians out of important positions on the southern part of the Sevastopol fortress while stores and supply vessels of the Russians were destroyed by air attacks in the harbor district.

(The communique did not mention the Ukraine sector, where recent heavy fighting apparently has given way to a lull.)

Battle Before Moscow
On the central front before Moscow the Germans said, the Nazis fought against Russian forces which had been operating in the rear of the German lines.

Russian attacks on the Folkhov front southeast of Leningrad were reported repulsed again.

German dive bombers raided supply steamers in Murmansk harbor, the high command said. Fighters escorting the Stuka dive bombers shot down eleven enemy fighters, the Germans added.

Norwegian Ship Sunk near Shore

A GULF PORT, June 18 (AP)—A small Norwegian merchantman was sent to the bottom by a single torpedo on the night of June 14 so close to shore that the 20 survivors paddled their crowded lifeboat into this harbor 15 hours later.

Two men on watch in the engine room were killed when the torpedo struck and four members of the crew, including Capt. Holme Brynildsen, were injured.

"Whatever was in that torpedo, it certainly was powerful," related John Ljenslie of Frasta, Norway, the second mate. "We had to leave our ship in a hurry. She went down in three minutes."

The ship was running without lights when the attack occurred at 9:45 p. m. (EWT).

No one saw the submarine either before or after the torpedo ripped into the port side.

it might be diverted to salaries, bonuses or reserves.

Suggestion by Treasury
The treasury has suggested that the income from the refunds, which might be in the form of securities which would be non-negotiable until after the war, be not taxable. However sentiment against this idea was reported strong in the committee.

per cent refund would affect about 36,000 corporations and would mean the return of about $954,000,000 annually.

Thus, although the bill the committee has agreed upon tentatively would raise about $6,640,000,000, the refunds would reduce that to about $5,686,000,000.

The committee has agreed on corporation normal, sur-taxes and excess profits taxes to raise $2,647,000,000 which, subtracting the refund, would be $1,693,000,000.

Secretary Morgenthau, Donald M. Nelson, War Production chief, and other administration officials have contended that unless the committee softened the blow of a ninety-four per cent excess profits tax—the top rate now is sixty per cent—the production for war might be endangered.

House Approves

Meanwhile, he reminded the House that even with the concentration on carriers, there was still a place in sea warfare for the battleship. He mentioned a possibility that the "carriers may be stricken from the sea" as a result of concentrated attack on that type of vessel.

For that reason, he said, the navy planned to continue construction of battleships on which the work has already started. He disclosed earlier that work had been deferred on "four or five" battleships which have not reached the keel laying stage.

Red Parliament

tween Russia and Britain on the "alliance in the war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe and on collaboration and mutual assistance thereafter."

The treaty was signed in London on May 26.

Molotov declared that the conversations in London and Washington strengthened the conviction that "victory over German Imperialism will be considerably faster."

Among the main points in Molotov's speech were:

1. The agreements would govern both the wartime and post-war co-operation with no territorial expansion or interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

2. The Soviet Union holds no territorial ambitions either in Europe or Asia, including Iran. (The Russians have troops in northern Iran while the British have soldiers in the southern section of the country, which is an allied stepping stone to the Russian front.) Russia also made no secret agreements with the British or the United States.

3. American supplies will be "greater" come "faster."

4. The United States increased Soviet credit for payment of supplies from $1,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000.

5. "Complete unanimity of views" was reached at London and Washington for a second front in Europe in 1942 which would create "insurmountable difficulties for Germany."

Stalin Enjoys Session

Stalin, in his first public appearance of the war, received a three-minute ovation which was stopped when a bell rang. He appeared in fine form and high spirits. Wearing a plain, undecorated, semi-military gray tunic, he listened attentively to Molotov and exchanged a comment and a smile time after time with Mikhail Kalinin, president, who sat on his right.

Standing behind Stalin, in full field uniform, was Marshal Klement Voroshilov, hero of the Leningrad stand and now commander of Russia's Far Eastern forces.

Andrei Zhdanov secretary of the Leningrad party committee, told the Parliament that the people of Leningrad would work with "triple energy" against the Germans in response to the party. He told of Leningrad's resistance to the siege.

These Men Really Lost Their Shirts

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—

Four volunteer firemen at nearby Port Orange really did lose their shirts while fighting a woods blaze, as they reached the scene they shrugged off their shirts and threw them on a parked bicycle, asking a small boy to keep an eye on them. The boy became so excited watching the fire he wandered away in search of a better vantage point, and the spreading flames burned up the shirts and ruined the bike.

Some Sensible Tax Deductions

THE RECOMMENDATION passed on from the Treasury department to the House Ways and Means committee for the confiscation of higher incomes failed to win approval in that group probably for the reason that it stepped upon the principle of free enterprise. That, of course, would be ended if such a plan should find permanency, although the proposal was intended only for the war emergency. Another weighty reason was the fact that the possessors of large incomes have already had the most of them taxed away under existing tax schedules and that the yield from the confiscation of individual incomes exceeding $25,000 would be comparatively trivial.

But in passing on the recommendation, which was originally proposed by President Roosevelt, Randolph Paul, tax adviser to Secretary Morgenthau, submitted another proposal that should merit favorable consideration. This was for a deduction for debt up to about fifteen percent of income after present income taxes. Paul's statement said that this should "be made available also to people who had no debt commitments, provided it was spent in meeting other financial commitments, such as insurance premiums on policies taken out in the past or was invested in federal securities." That differentiation seems unduly discriminatory, however. Certainly if any relief is deserved for insurance premium payments it is deserved by those struggling to liquidate debt more than those not so burdened. Perhaps, however, he intended the allowance to be extended to both classes, which in all fairness it should be, if it is extended at all.

The proposal thus equalized, should be adopted, but especially should some deduction for debt liquidation be allowed, as this newspaper has long contended. It is in line not only with the president's recommendation that families who are buying homes on the amortization plan should reduce their mortgages whenever possible, but it also comports with sound fiscal fundamentals. As heretofore noted, debt reduction is always a healthful thing both for the individual and for the national economy for the simple reason that both are made the stronger thereby. In view of the fiscal responsibilities faced by this nation and its people, such strengthening is of the utmost importance.

Patriotic but Not Quite Fair

NO ONE can entertain the slightest doubt that the action of Mr. Justice Murphy, of the federal supreme court, in seeking and obtaining a commission in the army was inspired by anything else than the highest patriotic motives. He served as an officer in the army before and naturally in returning to the service he would be accorded an officer's commission.

But Justice Murphy has gone into the service with strings attached. He is to serve as a lieutenant colonel during the summer months, when the supreme court is in recess, and is to return to the bench when his leave of absence therefrom closes. Some view this arrangement as a mistake on the ground that it is unfair both to the supreme bench and the army. It is pointed out that service with the army is a full-time job, and that service on the supreme bench is likewise a full-time job inasmuch as the members are assigned much work to do when the court is in summer recess. The objection is that nobody should thus be permitted to play around with either post on a part-time basis, as it is unfair to those in both branches.

Perhaps the War department is at fault here in thus accepting temporary service from a member of the highest tribunal of the nation. If this sort of thing should spread, the army would suffer unnecessary disruptions of its routine.

A Difference Of Opinion

SHORTLY BEFORE the House voted by 277 to 53 to appropriate $338,000,000 for the WPA for the twelve months beginning July 1, Chairman Cannon, of the Appropriations committee, and House Majority Leader McCormack contended that there existed a real need for the relief agency in sections of the country where there has been no concentration of war production. The Appropriations committee has estimated that the sum will provide for an average of 400,000 persons a month on WPA, beginning in July.

Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, recently said that by the end of 1943 the number of war workers will be increased from the present 9,000,000 to 25,000,000 and in addition 7,000,000 more men will be drawn into the armed forces. He said that compulsion may be necessary from time to time in the administration of the manpower program. The commission previously had asserted that large-scale forced migration of labor may be necessary.

Mr. McNutt gave no idea of the rate of speed with which the 14,000,000 extra workers will be drawn to war industries, but indications are the shift will be rapid. It seems that these additional men will have to come to some extent from areas in which there is not now a concentration of war production.

The House voted against a proposal by Representative Wigglesworth which would have held the WPA's funds down to $100,000,000 for the remainder of this year rather than give it $338,000,000 for the next twelve months. Thus it appears that the House members voting for the full appropriation do not altogether agree with the commission's estimate of the drain on manpower that the war will cause.

The citizen, weighing the attitude shown by Congress, may be led to think the coming congressional elections was a factor in the vote.

Concession to Fair Play and Realism

THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE has yielded in the matter of pressing the prosecution of a number of important war industries which were indicted in May on a charge of maintaining a dyestuffs monopoly. Secretary of War Stimson asked for postponement of the trials on the ground that in making a defense the corporations would be seriously hampered in their war efforts.

The decision is in line with common prudence in a time of national peril. The situation was examined in March by the president and the heads of the War, Navy and Justice departments. It was seen that the federal government has nearly complete control of war production corporations, hence is able to escape the penalty of dealing with a monopoly, if such exists.

It was also seen that as a war measure the government must at times encourage the pooling of industrial resources by what amounts to forced agreements that are technically in restraint of trade.

Senator Van Nuys has prepared a bill which demonstrates a fine comprehension of the whole wartime monopoly prosecution problem. His bill would postpone action but in no way reduce the power of the department of Justice to prosecute later, or alter the antitrust policy of the government that has been in effect since President Harrison signed the Sherman act fifty years ago.

The government has wavered in its recent policy toward monopolies. It encouraged them under NRA, and then prosecuted some of those which it had encouraged following the voiding of NRA. It has used threats of prosecution to harass and intimidate corporations, but has legalized monopolies to control farm products, prices and wages. Now, apparently, the war crisis has forced it to make some concession to fair play and realism.

One of the silver linings to this war is that it has kept Signor Mussolini too busy to continue posing half-nude in order to show the world what a great he-man he isn't.

An advantage in declaring war on Hitler's satellite nations is that this will place them on their own side of the table at the peace conference.

The Axis nations, crying for their "place in the sun," will wind up with nothing more than a good tanning.

The man at the next desk thinks the Japs must have paid for their aircraft carriers out of a sinking fund.

On Account of Some Geese

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You must me to go somewhere and make a little talk?

No, thank you. You're very kind but I'd rather not. . . . Please don't insist, you don't know what you could be getting into. It would be a very terrible speech. You don't know how bad it would be. No, thank you very much. I CANNOT make a speech.

How do I know I can't? Well, on account of some geese.

What do I mean—on account of some geese? It was this way. . . . It was the last day of school, long ago, and we were going to have "recitations." I was six years old and I had a lovely new white sailor suit. With wide bottomed trousers and a wide sailor collar and I was very proud and I had my little speech all memorized. I think it was about a Little Red Hen and how she planted the wheat and how she reaped the wheat and made it into bread and how she and her little family ate that bread. . . . I was going to be a SUCCESS!

So I started off for school, with my ears washed, in my nice new suit. . . . But a bunch of geese lived in a field I had to cross and everybody knows what geese do to little boys in new sailor suits. They charged at me. They hissed. I shouted at them but they kept coming, and pecked at my clean white trousers. . . . So I ran and I slipped and I fell plop on my little backside in a puddle of muddy water.

I was late. I couldn't go home. I had to go to school and recite my piece. I was on the program and I had to be there. . . . So I stood up before the giggling class in my muddy sailor suit. . . . And I wasn't a success. It's some chore being a success when the seat of your pants is all wet and you're thinking of a venemous flock of geese when you should be reciting about a nice little red hen.

That cured ME of getting up before people and making speeches. Ever afterward whenever I tried it I felt like a goose instead of a capable red hen and I was never any good at it. . . . The only time I was halfway successful was when I put on blackface and went on with a Great Dane as another part of the act. . . . You wouldn't want me to come around with my back end on my face, would you? You wouldn't? This is to be a serious talk? Well, that lets me out. I really couldn't. I'd be thinking of those geese and I'd hear them hissing all the time I was talking. Of course you understand.

Anglo-Soviet Pact Is Not Affected By Missing Comma

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 18.—This is a story about a missing comma in the British-Soviet treaty recently signed. When the text of the agreement was published in the newspapers, the article two read as follows:

"The high contracting parties undertake not to enter into any negotiations with the Hitlerite government or any other government in Germany that does not clearly renounce all aggression intentions, and not to negotiate or conclude, except by mutual consent, any armistice or peace treaty with Germany, or any other state associated with her in acts of aggression in Europe."

Between the phrase "Hitlerite government" and the next part of the sentence no comma appeared in the text as called to and printed in the American newspapers on the morning of June 12 last.

Meaning Altered

Thus the sentence could conceivably mean that Britain and Russia undertake not to enter into negotiations with the Hitlerite government unless it clearly renounced all aggression intentions which, of course, some officials in the Hitlerite government have been saying in the past and could continue to say in the future.

What was obviously intended, of course, was to consider the first part of the sentence as having ended with the flat statement that neither Russia nor Britain would undertake to enter into any negotiations with the Hitlerite government. To accomplish this purpose, a comma should have been inserted after the words "Hitlerite government."

Fully Understood

Inquiry here among our high officials elicited the response that while the sentence was subject to that construction because of the absence of the comma, the American government was fully familiar with all that had gone on in the conversations preceding the announcement of the treaty and no such interpretation was even remotely thought of.

Similarly, British officials in Washington said that the comma was understood. An inquiry was made to the London government and it was ascertained that the comma was not in the official text. But word comes that no such meaning was intended, of course, and that the British government has sufficiently punctuated its utterances heretofore both through the prime minister and other spokesmen so that the world knew that no matter how much the Hitlerite government might renounce aggression intentions, this would not cause the United Nations to enter into any peace negotiations with the government.

Armistice Allowance

In the interest of historical accuracy, perhaps the comma ought to be inserted but when the history of this war is written it will be found that no negotiations will have been entered into with the Hitlerite government for the making of any peace treaty. An occasion could arise whereby negotiations for an armistice and surrender would be technically commenced with some officer of the Hitlerite government, just as in the last war the proposal for an armistice came from the chancellor of the Kaiser's government, after which the emperor abdicated and revolution followed and a new government was established.

As the absence of the comma was first noted, it was suggested by some observers that it might have been omitted to take care of just such a military contingency, when, in order to prevent the outbreak of chaos in a defeated country, arrangements for the entrance of an armistice came from the chancellor of the Kaiser's government, after which the emperor abdicated and revolution followed and a new government was established.

There is no argument for scrapping every warship except carriers, destroyers and submarines. Heavy warships are still the backbone of any fleet. Japan's successes in Malaya and the Dutch East Indies were due as much as anything to the fact that her battle fleet was assured her communications. Without our own Navy standing in readiness, we could not supply Australia, or even, perhaps, hold onto Midway or Hawaii. The loss of the Philippines was primarily because we had lost control of the sea in that area to Japan.

But the lesson of Pearl Harbor, Midway and the Coral Sea is that the nation with sufficient land-based aircraft is immune to attack from the sea. No fleet or combination of fleets could hope to make a successful invasion of a hostile coast in the face of stronger air forces.

Meddling Is Repudiated

From the Johnstown, Pa. Tribune

The New Deal has not abandoned politics for the duration of the war despite the president's plea that partisanship be forgotten for the present. New Dealers in their zeal to take the scalps of public officials who could be labeled non-interventionists prior to the Pearl Harbor attack have even taken a hand in Republican party primary contests. There is some satisfaction in noting that their success to date has been negligible.

Sea Offensive by America Is Expected As Result of Carrier Losses by Japs

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The launching of an American offensive in the Pacific is forecast by the destruction of Japanese air carrier power there. Recapture of Wake Island or a MacArthur move northward is the most fondly hoped-for step.

The Japs have lost nearly all the nine aircraft carriers accredited to them by Jane's Fighting Ships, and a couple more they secretly built. Gone for sure are the big Akagi (27,000 tons), the Soryu (10,000) and the large Ryukaku (unlisted). These flat-tops were scratched from the war by American aircraft in the Coral Sea and at Midway. Little doubt exists that the Kaga (27,000) went down at Midway along with either the Hiryu (10,000 tons) or the Ryuyuzo (7,000).

Paul Mallon

Against these we have six big flat-tops, mostly 20,000 tons or over, and perhaps one or two new ones the Japs do not know about.

A significant naval lesson has been learned in these battles. The Japs performed wonderfully well as long as they remained near land and used land-based planes for auxiliary protection. Indo China, Malaya, Singapore, Dutch East Indies, Philippines. But when they started straying out into the broad Pacific, they went bye-bye.

This lesson now applies to us in fighting our way back across the Pacific to points where we will encounter their land-based planes. The counter attack will not be easy.

Battleship Line Inact

Also we cannot sail right into Tokyo, because the main Japanese battleship line is still without serious damage (they no doubt outnumber us in this respect). Her cruiser strength has been crippled but not severely.

Thus while the way is opened for us to make some spectacular blows in the Pacific, we are faced with obvious limitations.

Certainly the possibility of large aircraft raids on our West Coast, on the Panama Canal, Hawaii, Midway, is, however, sharply diminished.

These fights suggest also the top seadogs of the future will be a flat-top with adequate defenses from bombs and torpedoes. Their limited maneuverability makes them the easiest targets on the seas now, but at the same time they have proved the most powerful striking force afloat when their planes are in action.

Rubber and Gasoline

Congress has been hooting (and rightly) at the administrative branch of government for failing to create a single authority to make final decisions in the rubber and gas messes respectively. But if Congress will look around inside itself it will discover that the rubber problem has been handled by no less than seven different investigating committees.

The House Interstate Commerce committee, the House Coinage committee and the Patman Small Business committees have gone into the matter in the lower branch. In the Senate, the Truman committee, the Agriculture subcommittee, the Senate Banking subcommittee, and the Military Affairs committee have lent a hand.

Meanwhile Senator Maloney, who helped to expose the phony Iokes gas shortage last year, is about to get some money from the Senate audit and control committee to look into the rubber-gas matter.

However, the administrative branch is still far ahead of the congressmen in red tape on the subject. As it has twenty or more bureaus directly or indirectly investigating or advising what should be done.

After calling at the White House, Senator Gillette has proposed a bill to create a single rubber authority which is assumed to have official backing.

French To Keep Fleet

Some more concrete evidence that the French will hold their fleet against the Nazis at all costs recently has been received within this government. Also the French people have not lost their sympathy for the Allied cause, even though they must suppress it.

You could nearly read these thoughts between the lines of Pétain's speech, but Washington knows it in another way.

Some uneasiness is felt about the situation on the Russian front, despite the happy reports from Moscow. No intimations of bad news to come have been received, but uncertainty is heightened by the absence of our military observers from that front and the complete lack of information through any official channels.

counter their land-based planes. The counter attack will not be easy.

Battleship Line Inact

Also we cannot sail right into Tokyo, because the main Japanese battleship line is still without serious damage (they no doubt outnumber us in this respect). Her cruiser strength has been crippled but not severely.

Thus while the way is opened for us to make some spectacular blows in the Pacific, we are faced with obvious limitations.

Certainly the possibility of large aircraft raids on our West Coast, on the Panama Canal, Hawaii, Midway, is, however, sharply diminished.

These fights suggest also the top seadogs of the future will be a flat-top with adequate defenses from bombs and torpedoes. Their limited maneuverability makes them the easiest targets on the seas now, but at the same time they have proved the most powerful striking force afloat when their planes are in action.

Rubber and Gasoline

Congress has been hooting (and rightly) at the administrative branch of government for failing to create a single authority to make final decisions in the rubber and gas messes respectively. But if Congress will look around inside itself it will discover that the rubber problem has been handled by no less than seven different investigating committees.

The House Interstate Commerce committee, the House Coinage committee and the Patman Small Business committees have gone into the matter in the lower branch. In the Senate, the Truman committee, the Agriculture subcommittee, the Senate Banking subcommittee, and the Military Affairs committee have lent a hand.

Meanwhile Senator Maloney, who helped to expose the phony Iokes gas shortage last year, is about to get some money from the Senate audit and control committee to look into the rubber-gas matter.

However, the administrative branch is still far ahead of the congressmen in red tape on the subject. As it has twenty or more bureaus directly or indirectly investigating or advising what should be done.

After calling at the White House, Senator Gillette has proposed a bill to create a single rubber authority which is assumed to have official backing.

Pact with Russia Raises Question As to Democracy

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Maybe it was unjust to the Soviet Republics to accuse 'em of a fondness for Nazism because they had that compact with the Reich prior to Herr Hitler's attack on them, as an accompaniment to the outbreak of war between the Axis and the world's democracies, now the United Nations.

It was a compact that's beginning to be explained, directly following the Yan-kee-British-Chinese combination, as a United Nations nucleus in opposition to the totalitarians in general, but Germany and Japan in particular.

May Fight Japan

Not, indeed, that the Soviets are yet aligned against Japan, like this country, the British and the Chinese, but the assumption is that they will be shortly. And at any rate, they're identified with the Nations' program for a mutually satisfactory and permanent peace when the Axis is licked flat enough to have such a piece imposed on totalitarianism.

The Soviets and the Nazis did have a compact, which was supposed to be anti-democratic.

The Soviet folk, having advertised their ideology ahead of the rest of the overseas bunch, were the earliest to be hated by the democracies, on the ground that they were Communists. They also were blamed for having been unnecessarily rough with the czar and members of his family—not that czarism was indorsed, but the notion was that Communism had overdone matters, in killing him and everybody else that ever had been identified with his system and all others connected with it, hereditarily; perhaps not maliciously.

Fascism Loses Favor

Then Fascism developed, under Mussolini. After passing the experimental stage, that also became democratically unpopular.

Next Nazism followed. Managed by Herr Hitler, Nazism became worse loathed than Fascism—as more dangerous if not more despicable. Communism, though, had first start. Nazism had to have a bit of time to catch up with it. Congressional Investigators Ham Fish and Martin Dies were on the Communists' trail before Signor Mussolini's and Herr Hitler's doctrines had been fairly advertised. Even yet it's hard to call off Investigator Dies from the Communists' scent and sick him onto that of the other totalitarianisms.

At the juncture referred to, it scarcely seemed that the Hitler-Stalin deal was cooked up.

Wasn't it natural for all democrats to consider 'em in cahoots? Yet the next move was for Herr Hitler to attack Comrade Stalin. Confusing—what?

Today Comrade Stalin is in arms against Herr Hitler—and, on Joe Stalin's part, as a DEMOCRAT, against Adolf, by gravity! And allied with the other democracies, too. Joe's a democratic ALLY. He's prepared to be 100 per cent helpful and he's asking for reciprocation—and our inclination's to give it to him.

How about this transformation?

Arranged by Litvinov

Maxim Litvinov, Russia's ambassador in Washington, explains it quite clearly.

The dicker formally was closed between President Roosevelt and Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov on his recent secret visit in the United States, but it was arranged and signed by Comissar Litvinov, a resident here for a long time, and a bird who understands Yankee psychology.

Comrade Litvinov always, like the rest of his countrymen, eternally wanted basic democracy—meaning anarchy, if you prefer the term. The theory is that Herr Hitler and Duce Mussolini didn't want democracy.

Gosh knows—as to democracy? Now—the dope is, is Russia democratic?

It says so. Communistic, huh? I'm kinda curious—Communistic, Fascistic, Naziistic, Falangistic, what-the-heck?

I'm bugs as to what IS democracy.

Effects of X-Rays on Various Kinds Of Cells Described by Dr. Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The discovery of the X-ray was announced in 1895. As early as 1896 Dr. J. E. Gilman of Chicago, who was physician to an industrial plant which manufactured the early type of x-ray apparatus, noticed that the workers had a kind of inflammatory reaction on the skin of the hands.

He reasoned that the x-ray might kill certain cells and he sent a patient with cancer of the breast for treatment to a Mr. Grubel of Chicago, who was an expert in the use of the early x-ray tubes. I understand that Mr. Grubel is still alive.

A little later Becquerel, who was a co-worker with the Curies on radium, walked into their laboratory and showed them a little ulcer on the skin of his abdomen. "Shee," he said, "I am its friend, but it bites me." He had put a piece of radium in his vest pocket and left it there long enough to cause some skin destruction.

From these experiences, on the result of reasoning and one the result of accident, there has developed the great field of the use of radiant light in the treatment of certain diseases. The diseases include cancer, certain blood diseases, lymphatic node diseases and a great many skin conditions.

Many Improvements
An enormous amount of improvement has been made in the equipment and the technique of this work. With the early tubes there was no way to measure the amount of current the tube received. The use of filters and protective devices have been improvements of only the last fifteen to twenty years.

To try to explain how the X-ray works is not easy in simple language because there are many things that are not yet known about it. The x-ray and radium emanate a form of light different from the light which our eyes perceive in being only a much shorter wave length.

This shorter wave length gives the power to penetrate objects which appear opaque to the eyes. This light is discharged at a tremendous speed in the form of tiny particles of energy—electrons which knock them out of their orbit, the result of which is a transfer of energy. This charged energy has an effect upon certain tissues.

Action of the X-Ray
The second part of the action of the x-ray—the effect on tissues—

SUN AS BRUSH

Morris Simon

This artist, Morris B. Simon, 59-year-old former railroad policeman, uses a magnifying glass and the sun in place of brushes and paint. He is shown burning his ideas onto wood in Washington Square park in New York city. When he finishes the historic panel before him, he plans to present it to President Roosevelt.

applies best to a few kinds of cells. The law of action, which was formulated in 1906, states that the sensitivity of tissue to the x-ray varies with the degree of differentiation of the cell. Therefore, a young undifferentiated cell such as that of cancer, lymphatic tissues, etc., is destroyed most easily. But this law is only relatively true, since it has been found out that the environment of the cells is also of great importance.

To summarize: In some cases the x-ray destroys tissues by destroying the cells directly and in some cases it causes healing by increasing the activity of the healing cells. Some highly differentiated cells are not affected by the x-ray at all.

Questions and Answers
M. T. R.:—Will diathermy treatment cure severe inflammation of the fallopian tubes or oviducts? If so, approximately over what period of time. If diathermy treatments are not advisable, what should be done and over what period of time?

Answer: Diathermy is frequently a very successful treatment of inflamed fallopian tubes. When the condition does not respond to diathermy, it can be treated by an operation. I would say that diathermy treatment should be continued for at least six months.

AN ANCIENT PROFESSION

Pharmacy is one of the oldest of all the learned professions. It had its beginning more than four thousand years ago, and has been practiced in one form or another ever since. The modern drug store bears little resemblance to the apothecary of old. Yet, today's pharmacist is inspired by the same honorable principles that governed the conduct of his forebear. The pharmacist's chief interest, now as then, is the relief of suffering and the prolongation of life. Prescriptions come first in our store. Your doctor may not like to recommend any particular pharmacy, but he will never complain if you bring his prescriptions to us.

dramatizes the fabulous history of American jazz, the results of the poll show the hold of fourteen idolized swing virtuosi on the musical-minded millions.

Of the fourteen musicians picked, seven found themselves able to accept. Producer-Director William Dieterle's invitation to participate in the climactic "jam" session of "Syncopation."

"India in Crisis," first of March of Time's two reports on India, comes to the Liberty theater here, today. (The second is titled "India at War," and each is a separate and complete story.)

"Sunday Punch" Story Enhanced by Action

Two prize fighters and a lady provide a thrilling as well as hilarious plot for "Sunday Punch," which starts tomorrow at the Maryland theater, in which William Lundigan, new screen discovery makes his bow as a leading man, opposite Jean Rogers, and stages a gripping prize fight with Dan Dailey, Jr., in the midst of an expert, all-comedian cast.

The story deals with a stable of fighters in a boarding house. Lundigan "falls" for Miss Rogers when she goes there as the landlady's niece, and Dailey, playing the janitor, also smitten, decides he can win her if he becomes a prize fighter. A manager discovers that Dailey has a "Sunday" punch or sure-fire haymaker, books him and Dailey scores in a series of sensational ring knockouts.

The associate feature, starring Joan Blondell and John Wayne in "Lady For A Night," a thrilling drama of love and intrigue from the deep romantic South.

Film Kisses Shouldn't Last over 5 Seconds

A screen kiss should last no longer than five seconds.

That's the dictum of Director Edward Dmytryk, once a film editor. He knows the trouble inherent in screen osculation.

When Leif Erikson and Florence Rice rehearsed a romantic scene in Columbia's "The Blonde From Singapore," now at the Garden theater, Dmytryk made it very plain that the kiss should be over in five seconds.

"Make it short and make it size," he ordered.

In addition to the difficulty attendant upon cutting a scene in the middle of a kiss, Dmytryk maintains that too long an embrace slows story interest, distracts attention of impressionable romantics, young and old, from the picture's plot.

Autry Stars in Action Picture

"Home in Wyoming," the latest in Gene Autry's series of musical action dramas for Republic, now showing at the Embassy theater. Smiley Burnette has his customary comedy role in the new film with a talented youngster, Joe Strauch, Jr., portraying Smiley's kid brother, a half-pint edition known as "Tadpole."

Pay McKenzie has the feminine lead in the story, which has to do with Gene's adventures setting a near-defunct rodeo on its feet, with a few murders thrown in to make the proceedings exciting.

Among the supporting players are Olin Howlin, Chick Chandler, James Seay, Forrest Taylor, George Douglas, Bud Geary, Ken Cooper, Hal Price and James McNamara.

The second feature, "Shepherd of The Ozarks," with the Weaver brothers and Elvira, is packed to the tilt with real funny-bone laughs and adventure.

Americans Score Direct Hits on Italian Warships

Battleships Littorio and Cavour Damaged in Mediterranean

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—The War department reported today that American army heavy bombers scored a number of direct hits on the Italian battleships Littorio and Cavour in Monday's air and sea fighting in the Mediterranean.

The department issued this communique, number 228:

"The War department has received a preliminary report from Colonel Harry A. Halverson relative to operations of the United States army heavy bombers in the recent attack on the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean sea.

"In close cooperation with the British fleet and the Royal Air Force, a formation of United States army B-24 heavy bombers from Colonel Halverson's command attacked capital ships of the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean. The attack began about 6:00 a. m. on June 15, when the Italian fleet, consisting of the battleships Littorio and Cavour, accompanied by several cruisers and a screen of destroyers was encountered. The fleet was apparently en route to attack a large and important British convoy. Our bombers concentrated their attack on the two Italian battleships, scoring a considerable number of direct hits.

"As a result of this attack by American and British planes, the Italian war ships were put to flight without attacking the British vessels. Our planes encountered a considerable amount of anti-aircraft fire, which was ineffective.

"On the return to their North African base, our bombers were intercepted by German Messerschmitt fighter planes. One enemy plane was shot down and was seen to explode as it struck the sea. All of our planes returned to their base without being seriously damaged. There were no casualties among our personnel.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

Fly Over Jap Cruiser

"The Japs were using the same protective screen for their carrier that we generally did while cruising," Comm. Brett said later. "It was screened by several cruisers and destroyers that we ignored, even to the extent of flying right over one cruiser, while going in. That cruiser didn't fire at us. She must have mistaken us for some of their own — the weather was so bad it was an easy mistake to make.

"Just before I let my first (torpedo) go I could see the carrier well. Her decks were empty — all her planes were in the air, either defending the ship or pounding our own carriers. We saw the whole Jap vessel jump as our torpedoes began exploding. Then we were busy dodging fighters, calling down our own fighting pilots, and heading home.

As Comm. Brett's torpedo planes came snaking out of the low cloud, Comm. Ault's four heavy dive bombers were gaining altitude for their attacks. They first flew over the Japanese at 3,500 feet, picked the carrier from amid the formations below. The Japanese ships momentarily were in clear air but were steaming fast for a rain squall.

Three Bombs Hit Carrier

The four planes turned into their dives just as the first torpedoes were being released. Much of the carrier's anti-aircraft was busy with the torpedo planes — there being eleven of them — and Comm. Ault's bombers were not molested in their swift, straight descent. The result was that three of their bombs plunged through the carrier's deck. Towering masses of smoke and debris rose after each blast.

Only one of this force of four dive bombers reached the Lexington after the battle. A cloud of zeros intercepted Comm. Ault's little force and shot down three.

The assault on Japanese carrier No. 11 was just as furious as the raids made by the Lexington's squadrons on Jap No. 1.

"We had an uneventful flight to our objective," Ensign J. H. Jorgenson in one of our carrier No. 11's torpedo planes told me after the fight. "We circled once and saw two carriers, two battleships, three heavy cruisers and three light cruisers. They were increasing their speed to 25 knots and were spread over a distance of five miles long and three to four miles wide at that time.

"We dived on the starboard carrier, the skipper, Lieut. Comm. W. O. Burch, led and I followed. My bomb was released at 2,000 feet. I could see the skipper's 1,000 pounder hit flush on the carrier's deck. Then saw a lot of smoke."

Lieut. E. S. McCusky, also from United States Carrier II, was in a fighter accompanying a group of dive bombers and torpedo planes. He also saw two carriers and watched his comrades in the bombers and torpedo planes deliver strong assaults. Then he found himself in a fight with Japanese defensive fighters that occupied all his attention until he dove into a cloud and escaped. McCusky's official report read as follows:

Enemy Seeks Cover

"When we saw the enemy they were steering for the cover of a rainstorm. In their group were three battleships, two carriers, with an accompanying screen of destroyers. I was at 2,000 feet and the torpedo planes were right down on the water.

"As the torpedo planes went in I could see the Japanese main batteries firing their heaviest guns — either six or eight inchers — in salvos. They were kicking up spouts of water close to our planes, which were all fanned out to cover any angle the carrier might turn to evade the missiles.

"Thirty seconds later I saw three zeros above preparing to attack. I closed in on my leader, Lieut. George S. Leonard, to warn him. I overshot and the first Jap dove on me from above and behind. I applied full throttle and made a steep climbing turn toward him. His tracer bullets trailed behind my plane.

"In a few seconds I saw him pull up in front of me, smoke, hesitate, then go down in flames — evidently hit by one of our fighters. I believe by Lieut. Leonard."

Dive Bombers Busy

The dive bombing pilots of United States carrier II were busy meanwhile dropping their big explosive charges on and around Japanese carrier II. There were twenty-four of these which accounts for the large number of hits—seven as compared with the Lexington's total of three on the carrier her dive bombers hit. The Lexington's main dive bomber group, remember did not find the Japanese at all, and the only dive bombing support given the torpedo planes was by four planes.

One of the most determined and gallant acts of the entire five day battle came during the attack of United States carrier II's dive bombing groups. Lieut. John L. Powers, one of the pilots, had told his comrades that he was going to put his big bomb into a Japanese carrier "come hell or high water."

Victim of Own Bomb

Powers' dive was watched by a number of men. They said he held his ship straight for the Japanese deck until he was down to 500 feet — point-blank range even for a dive bomber. There he released his bomb and began his recovery. The missile went true to its mark and the resulting explosion shattered not only the Jap ship but also Powers' plane.

"There is no question that John knew what he was doing," one of his fellow pilots told me. He knew that if you go below about 700 feet in your recovery the blast will get you every time. To stay above 700 feet means you must release your bomb no lower than 1,000 feet. He held his to 500 and was probably below 300 feet when the explosion came. He just decided not to miss. God bless him."

British Eighth

stood as a drag on a drive into Egypt, eighty miles to the east, by Nazi troops which had by-passed the port.

May Attack Fortress

Informed persons expressed the belief that Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel would try quickly to cut the coastal road as a preliminary to a grand assault on the fortress. The Nile valley and the middle east appeared to be in no immediate danger, however.

Although British tank strength is admitted less than Rommel's, no big allied formations have been trapped. Withdrawals have been conducted skillfully and at high cost to the enemy.

So much of Rommel's offensive power has been spent that it is possible that the most he hopes to achieve now is to take Tobruk and drive the British clear back to the Egyptian frontier.

Had he succeeded in his original goal of taking Tobruk in the first few days of his offensive, the story might have been different.

The German plan now seems to be to try to take Tobruk, use it as a port of entry and build up for a possible autumn offensive against the Middle East.

Tobruk Important Post

Tobruk, Libya's best deep water harbor, is of tremendous importance to either side; to the Nazis because its capture would eliminate their bugbear of an 800-mile supply line from their major base at Tripoli, and to the British for the like reason of a maintenance problem over hundreds of miles of desert.

Any plans the Germans may have for an autumn onslaught depend on their ability to divert sufficient men and armor from Europe.

Should the Middle East fall, the Axis not only would gain the food and oil resources of this area but both the east and west gates to the Indian ocean, thus opening the way for Germany to get much needed rubber, tin and other materials from the Far Pacific territory controlled now by Japan.

That is why holding this gateway is so vital to allied victory—and why there may be American armored troops here by fall to supplement the American air combatants already here.

As important preparation against today's developments, the British this week dared heavy Axis air and sea attack to run a convoy into Tobruk with stores, munitions and armament.

Similarly bold convoy action kept the Anzac, Poles and Britons of the Tobruk garrison supplied during the notable siege from April 14, 1941, until a British offensive relieved it on Dec. 10.

Japanese Attack

not blurred by unfavorable weather, he spoke of the Midway engagement.

"Inevitably," he said, "when the reports come in there is immense confusion. At Midway, where the weather was clear, the information available gave us a good general picture of the outcome but there was much confusion as to just what ships were hit."

"I spent three or four days studying the army and navy reports as they came in, and didn't know at the end just what ships were hit."

into enemy territory to establish a bridge-head, to demolish enemy installations and to prepare paths, roads and bridges for the infantry advance.

Always Disguised

Like the English Commandos, the Pioneers vary their type of fighting to the terrain. When they work at night, they rub black mud on their faces and hands. In the day, they stick ferns, grass or brush fragments into their collars and under their hats to blend themselves with the surroundings.

Officers said the Pioneers were not expected to do their fighting with the wicked machetes, bolo and brush knives, unless they had to. But ask a Pioneer which he would use—his knife or his rifle—if he ran into a few Japs in the brush.

He will wet his finger, cautiously run it down the blade, grab the handle with both hands and wave it over his head.

"Maybe it isn't orthodox fighting," one of them said, "but I'll bet it would be plenty effective."

gone with her but she can't say the same thing to me. She cries and begs me to give her one more chance, and tells me how mean other boys have treated her. But still my love seems to have gone and I haven't a bit of faith in her any more. What shall I do?

BUDDY.

In considering the proposals of all three boys, it appears to me as if this young lady is not very deeply in love with any one of you. She's judicial rather than emotional. You cannot be blamed for experiencing a change of sentiment toward her.

Request Not Carried Out
Dear Miss Fairfax:

A very dear friend of mine passed away. Before her death she expressed the wish that I should have her wearing apparel. She roomed and boarded with a family who knew of this request, but although it has been a month since my friend died, they have not notified me. Have you any suggestions?

A TRUE FRIEND

Don't you think it would be advisable to write the people who still have the effects of your deceased friend and remind them of her promise to you concerning her wearing apparel? They know what disposition she wanted made of these things, and they'll carry out her wishes.

Loves Man Who Breaks Word

Dear Miss Fairfax:
My husband has been dead five years, and now that my children are married I would like a companion. I'm in love with a man—a widower—who is about 50 years old. I am 45. His one fault is that he drinks too much, and very often gets drunk. He promises me he won't do it again, and then breaks his word. He says he loves me, but when he does things like this, I doubt it. Do you think I could be happy married to such a man?

PERPLEXED.

I would as soon advise you to stand in the path of a locomotive as to marry a man of this type. After he had married you, he would think still less of keeping promises than he does now. Just go to a domestic relations court some day and listen to the evidence of drunkards' wives. As you value your own peace of mind, please don't marry this man.

Sisters Are Rivals

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I've been married twenty-one years, have two daughters of 19 and 16. A year ago they met a young man of 23, and my older daughter became very much attached to him although he didn't seem to care for her. He liked the younger girl, who thought she hated him. The older girl is quiet, doesn't date much and has just learned to dance; the younger one likes to dance, and is a good all-around sport whom the boys like.

About five months ago this young man joined the Marines. The two girls corresponded with him. He sent the younger girl gifts. This made her sister jealous and she insists her younger sister flirt with the young man and took him away from her. I know she didn't do that. Now the younger girl thinks she cares for the boy. He wrote and told her he loves her and has something to ask her soon. I'm afraid this will create a hatred between my two daughters. What would you advise me to do?

WORRIED MOTHER.

Your older daughter, whether or not she feels her sister flirted with the young man and took him away from her, would not want to force her affections on the man who plainly cares for someone else. See that your older daughter has a good time. Replenish her wardrobe, get her all the attractive new clothes you can afford. Urge her to make new contacts, go to parties. It's fortunate she's learned how to dance. I hope she dances well.

If she becomes interested in some other man, she'll forget the dashing Marine. Meanwhile your younger daughter should not flaunt her conquest. The affection of sisters is too precious a thing to lose over a man.

Former Commercial Pilot

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My son was employed as a pilot for a commercial air line. I hear that these have now been taken over for military purposes. I have not heard from my son and do not know where he is stationed. Naturally, I'm much worried. Can you tell me where I would reach him?

Mrs. A. W. G.

Commercial planes commandeered by the Army and converted into transports are now in service at undisclosed places as troop and cargo carriers. Nothing really to worry about. Your son will write you when these undisclosed bases have regular mail service.

False Teeth No Bar

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was turned down in the First Draft because of bad teeth. I had only five of my own and wore a plate. Since then I have been told that men with false teeth are acceptable. Would you let me know if this is correct? Does the Army pay for the new teeth?

Would-be-Private

The new dental standard for the Army was announced by Commander C. Raymond Wells, U. S. N. Chief Dental Officer, Medical Division of the Selective Service System. Men with artificial teeth will

Child's Daily Nap Important During Wartime

Rest Renders Tots Less Prone to Fears; Mothers Have More Time

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Young children should always have afternoon naps. During the present emergency the afternoon rest period is more important than ever before. It will render the tot less prone to fears and will also give his mother more time.

Any little child can be trained to take a nap regularly each afternoon, though not all parents succeed in getting him to do so. Some parents just seem unable to succeed at it at all. A few of them, indeed, should give it up. The next best thing for these few parents to do is to try to get the youngster quiet for a regular period each afternoon, through reading or quiet amusement.

Co-operation Necessary

Success at cultivating the co-operation of the little child depends on many other factors, chiefly the degree of cooperation from him in scores of other situations up to now; also on his general health, appetite, and sleep at night; on how regularly he is fed and put to bed by night or day; how fatigued or excited he is at nap time, or how excitable or ill-controlled is mother or nurse.

It is highly essential that the tot go for his nap every afternoon in his own home and without exception. It is very difficult for the child to respond for an afternoon nap if away from home or if allowed to omit going to bed for a nap occasionally.

See that your tot is not too weary or excited at nap time. Try to get him off to bed in a happy mood. Lure him there if you can. Failing to do so, just pick him up and carry him to bed; but on the way and while helping him prepare for bed, talk of something so appealing to him that he will turn from resistance to cooperation.

If, however, you know he is likely to get up, stand or play after you leave him, say to him: "You must not get up." Then go, leave his door ajar, and linger where you can see him and he cannot see you. The moment he rises to his knees or feet, go to him and spank him. Tuck him in again and proceed as before.

Hagerstown Doctor Must Serve Sentence

ANNAPOLIS, June 18 (AP) — The Court of Appeals has ruled that Dr. Allen B. Wilson of Hagerstown must serve a three-year penitentiary sentence imposed upon him for causing a drug to be administered for purposes of abortion.

Dr. Wilson was convicted at the February term of Washington county circuit court and sentenced on March 6.

Calvert K. Hartle of Hagerstown, attorney for the physician, argued before the Court of Appeals in April that the testimony of the complaining witness, a 21-year-old Pennsylvania girl "tended to prejudice" the jury.

Hartle also asserted that certain exhibits of drugs were improperly admitted at the trial.

Attorney General William C. Walsh and Charles Wagman appeared for the state of Maryland.

The opinion affirming the conviction and sentence imposed in the lower court was written by Judge Edward S. Delaplaine.

Cosmetics to Rayon Hosiery, Ice Cream To Fountain Pens—Army's P. X.'s Sell Them All

By GLEN W. DAVES
Central Press Writer

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—The second largest chain store system in the United States—and in the world for that matter—is an unusual enterprise.

All its many customers, with an occasional exception, wear uniforms, and so do all the "managers" and many of the employees. Credit is generously provided; in fact, the customers are urged to use it to their heart's content—provided they don't exceed their income limit.

There are no dividends. Profits don't go into a bank account—instead they are used to provide recreational facilities for the customers.

Stores are located all over the country, in the deep south, the north, the east, the southwest and on the plains and in the desert—wherever the customers are.

Carry Good to Customers

If the customers are engaged in pressing affairs at hand, then they aren't even expected to come in and trade—the merchandise actually is carried to them for cash or on credit, as they may choose!

You haven't clipped any coupons yet and you won't—but if you are a taxpayer, you're a stockholder!

This store system is composed of post exchanges serving men in the nation's armed forces. The annual business volume is huge, running into many millions of dollars. For example, the main exchange and six branches serving Camp Croft, 20,000-man Spartanburg Infantry replacement center, had a turnover exceeding $2,000,000 during the past year.

They spend large sums locally. Camp Croft exchanges' purchases of clothing, food and other merchandise in Spartanburg amount to more than $100,000 a month. They employ much local help also. 300 civilians having clerical and other jobs at the Camp Croft exchanges.

Plenty of the Best
This huge merchandising system is strictly non-commercial, handles nothing except high-quality merchandise and is widely diversified in its facilities, stock and benefits to customers.

For example, exchanges operate restaurants, bakeries, dry cleaning and tailoring establishments and barber shops. The bakery for Camp Croft exchanges turns out 200 dozen doughnuts a day and has a capacity of 600 dozen daily—if the customers, a young and healthy lot, demand that many! Along with other edibles, the kitchen produces 1,200 sandwiches every day. The same goes on day after day in all other post exchanges throughout the country.

Mobile stores serve men on the range and in the field. Station hospital patients have bedside deliveries.

Small Margin
The margin of profit is small. Every conceivable type of merchandise required by soldiers is carried in stock. Huge warehouse stocks are kept on the premises. Merchandise includes Officers' uniforms, cameras, fountain pens, stationery, candy, chewing gum, shirts, underclothing, ties, shoe polish, jewelry and souvenirs, razors and blades, toilet articles, shaving soap and cream, watches, sun glasses and hot and cold food and drinks, served in tempting, appetizing array.

Men make the Army, but just the same merchandise on post exchange shelves includes cosmetics and rayon hosiery! There's a beauty shop, too—but before anybody gets the idea that there are any sisters wearing khaki, it should be explained that this type of merchandise is carried for nurses and women employees!

A soldier, beginning with the first hour of his arrival in camp, may buy what he wants without cash if he is "temporarily short." This form of trading is taken care of by coupon books issued the soldiers by their company commanders. Con-pons are used the same as money and are deducted from the soldier's pay at the end of the month. The other form is cash. The plan a soldier wishes to use is optional. New men are immediately informed of the coupon plan and are urged to use it if they wish. Thus, none of Uncle Sam's hundreds of thousands of soldiers need go without smokes, stationery, refreshments or any other article or edible he desires.

System Is Old

The post exchange system is a long established institution in the Army. It was created so that soldiers on posts or in the field would be assured of the necessities of life—beyond all that the Army furnishes them—regardless of whether they have cash or not. It dates back, on a smaller scale than the present huge, streamlined system, almost to the origin of the Army.

The post exchange is one business that is designed, stocked and operated entirely for the benefit and requirements of the customers. All employees are paid from receipts, and any surplus reverts to the fund for recreational purposes.

Of equal importance is the post exchange system's great contribution to soldiers' morale. For this reason, and to take advantage of the many opportunities to be of

Profit Taking Causes Decline Of Small Amounts in Stock Market

Less Favorable War News Halts Brief General Upswing

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—Light profit taking, inspired partly by the cloudier war news from Libya and China, today served to stem the general stock market swing which got under way in the latter part of Wednesday's session.

While assorted favorites managed to finish with modest advances, declines of fractions to around 2 points were well distributed at the close.

Transfers totaled 359,120 shares against 388,480 the day before.

Prominent stocks on the offside included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, J. I. Case, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, General Electric, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Goodrich, Woolworth, Drexel and Western Union.

American Can went into new high ground for the year, but halved a forenoon advance and ended up 1/2 at 69 1/2. Improvement was retained by Consolidated Edison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Anaconda, Kennecott, Du Pont, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Youngstown Sheet and Republic Steel.

In the Curb Technicolor retreated 1/2 of a point on fair-sized volume when directors took no action on the dividend due at this time. Easier were American Light Lake Shore, Pittsburgh plate glass gained 1, Carnation 1 1/2, and Chicago Flexible Shaft 2 1/2. Turnover aggregated 59,260 shares versus 56,365 yesterday.

Bond prices moved irregularly, the majority holding to a narrow range. Gains and losses were about balanced in the rail section.

Volume shrank to $5,927,600, day value, from $6,112,000 the day before.

International Hydro electric lost 1/2 point of their recent gains, closing at 28 1/2. Losers among the rails included Missouri Pacific 1/2, 5s of 77 at 26 1/2, New York Central 5s at 48, and Northern Pacific 6s at 59 1/2.

Wabash 4 1/2, on a when issued basis, were up 1/2 at 34 1/2. Small gains were made by Baltimore & Ohio stamped convertibles at 19 1/2, and Rock Island General 4s of '88 at 22 1/2.

U. S. Government issues continued quiet after details of new government borrowing of $1,500,000,000 were announced.

Community Center Isn't Going To Be Converted into Hospital, Evans Says

Lonaconing Mayor Declares Members of Town Council Agree with Him

LONACONING, Md., June 18 (AP)—Rep. Katharine Byron of the Sixth Congressional District announced today she had persuaded the federal government to turn over a community house to the state for a hospital but Mayor John H. Evans said nothing doing.

The building was constructed by the National Youth Administration and Mrs. Byron said she was informed by federal officials that only acceptance by Governor O'Connor was necessary to complete the transfer.

"I've got something to say about that and they are not going to use the building for a hospital," Lonaconing's 27-year-old mayor commented.

"That building belongs to the town. We've put a lot of money in it, furnished the ground on which it stands and, what is more important, we hold the deed for the property."

"Now let's see somebody give away something that doesn't belong to them."

"The six members of the town council agree with me. They are not at all in favor of having it made into a hospital and you can take it from me they positively are not going to do any such thing."

Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council, said the need for a hospital in the Lonaconing area was acute.

"The people up there need and have needed a hospital or health center for a long time," he said.

Gateway Chatter

best friend, but fire that is out of control can be his worst enemy.

"Many communities are at work today building auxiliary fire fighting forces which may be needed to cope with enemy bombing attacks. Great as the destruction of property by aerial attack may be, it could hardly be more disastrous than the toll which fire takes in this country every year.

"Over a period of years, fire takes an annual toll of 10,000 lives and one-third of a billion dollars in property damage. Most fires result from negligence or carelessness.

"Just think how necessary those lives are to our present war emergency; and how large a quantity of bombers, tanks, anti-aircraft guns, or other fighting equipment could be purchased with the money which annually is wasted in fire losses.

"Most cities today have at least fairly good fire departments and water supplies. Few of them, however, have another instrument that is necessary to control fire—a modern fire prevention ordinance. A fire prevention ordinance permits fire department members to discover conditions which may lead to serious fires and to cause them to be eliminated.

"Included are sections on controlling the storage and use of explosives and flammables; the installation and maintenance of private fire alarm systems and fire extinguishing equipment; regulation and maintenance of fire escapes; requiring that places of public assembly have adequate exit facilities, properly indicated and free of obstructions; and investigation of the origin and cause of fire.

"During the last few critical months, twenty cities in ten states have adopted model ordinances and more than a hundred now are working toward their enactment. No matter how large or how small the community, if it does not already have a fire prevention ordinance, it is part of its duty to our country today to see that an adequate one is put into effect."

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By Donn Hailiday

TRAINING VINES IN VICTORY GARDENS

Many vines and climbing vegetables need to be supported and trained in a manner which will take as little space as possible and yet not entail too much work.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, paper clips when opened lengthwise make excellent supports for lightweight vines. One can work quickly and easily with them and the clips can be used many times. For heavy vines, such as grapes, dewberry and boysenberry canes, large hooks are advisable. These can be kept from one year to another.

Using hooks of this kind is especially advantageous in the extreme northern sections as the entire vine can easily be loosened, laid down and covered for winter.

agreed to buy the property, and then a few days later changed his mind. Then her husband removed the light fixtures.

Quarrel over Children Gray later returned and wanted to buy the house again, she said, and this time she and her husband sold the property. She said there was also some quarreling between the two families over the Emerick children, but added none of the quarrels between the two men had ever been "bitter quarrels."

On the day of the shooting, Mrs. Emerick stated, her husband left early to take a pig to Ellerslie. He returned at about 11 a. m. and said he wanted to go to the barber shop and would like to take an earlier bus to work. He took off his shirt and then went out on the back porch. Gray, Mrs. Emerick continued was in his yard, breaking rock and building a driveway. She stated she heard her husband and Emerick exchange words, and when her husband started down the driveway she followed him.

Heard Men Talking She heard the two men make remarks about the Emerick's pig pen, and heard her husband tell Gray the small did not come from the pig pen but from his feet. Emerick also took exception to Gray and his wife taking their spite out on Mrs. Emerick and the children, and challenged Gray to fight, the witness said.

Gray accepted the challenge, according to Mrs. Emerick and went into his house. He came out with a shot gun. Mrs. Emerick said her husband did not grab the gun but threw up his hands, apparently to knock the gun aside and grab Gray by the throat. She stated the gun discharged and Gray supported the body of her husband and beat him over the head with the gun.

Other witnesses summoned included Mrs. Clyde Emerick, a sister-in-law, Sheriff Radcliffe and Deputy Sheriff Steele, but they were not called to testify.

Thomas L. Richards assisted State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris with the case.

The United States Bureau of Standards uses a machine, that tests rugs by imitating the effect of as many as 48,000 footsteps.

Many companies paint the working and non-working parts of a machine different colors, to set off dangerous areas. Tests show that the idea not only reduces errors and accidents, but steps up output as well. One West Coast shipyard finished a Liberty freighter in seventy days flat, a new construction record.

Horse and Buggy Back in the Ads

BALTIMORE (AP) — The horse and buggy days are here again — and no foolin'. A welding shop ran the following ad:

Modern Horseshoes — Made to Measure — Guaranteed to Fit — Don't Throw Away Old Shoes, They May Be Rebuilt — Buggy Axles and Wheel Rims Repaired and Rebuilt.

And, looking ahead, the ad also carried a notation: (Proper Priorities Required).

"I am a Druggist—"

"To best serve the people of this community I maintain a stock of carefully selected merchandise. To be able to recommend the best product for every need, it is part of my training to know the definite standards of quality and measures that have been established by science and experience: When I order goods my selection is based on the known value of these widely recognized standards.

"Then I advertise to give people the news of my store: Because I know that nearly everybody reads a newspaper I use newspaper advertising regularly. When people pay for newspapers they read them carefully for all of the news that is interesting to them. When my ads are newsy and contain useful information I know that people will read them because they are news."

ANOTHER thing that merchants like about newspaper advertising is that they can buy it on the basis of known values that are just as definite as the measures of weight and quality that apply to merchandise which they handle.

Business men can not afford to speculate with advertising. When they buy newspaper space they can make their investments on the strength of circulation facts and figures that are verified. It is good business practice to buy advertising by such methods just as it is good business to select merchandise of known value.

This helpful information is available from reports issued by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, a cooperative organization of more than 2000 publishers, advertisers and advertising agencies.

This Bureau makes an annual audit of the circulation records of all publisher members. The verified reports based on these audits tell, for instance, how many copies of a newspaper are printed, just where they go and how distributed.

These and many other audited facts found in A.B.C. reports are the advertisers' assurance that they get what they pay for.

Temporary Bridge In Frederick May Be Ready July 4

Span To Replace Old Jug Bridge Is Delayed by Lumber Freezing Order

FREDERICK, Md., June 18 (AP)—The temporary span being erected on the site of the Old Jug Bridge may be ready for traffic by the Fourth of July—but it's still only a possibility.

Robert B. Crothers, president of the M. J. Grove Lime Company, which is doing the construction work, said that the temporary bridge may be ready for use between July 4 and 10 if lumber for the flooring is received within the next four or five days.

Flooring lumber was affected by the War Production Board's freezing order some time ago and both the contractor and the state roads commission had been trying to get a clearance order for the lumber, he added.

Crothers said the WPB had given authority to release the lumber and that a final clearance notice, which must be approved by the state, was expected almost immediately.

Failure of the floor lumber to arrive had already delayed the work, he explained. Two of the four temporary spans are already in place and Crothers said it now appeared that all four spans would be in place by the time the lumber arrived.

The Grove Company also holds the contract for erecting the new permanent bridge on the site, but Crothers said work would probably not get underway on that span sixty to ninety days.

The contractor must obtain, through the state roads commission, a new priority rating to get clearance for the steel that will be needed, he said.

Rationed into Home

TAMPA, Fla., (AP)—Sign of the times: A filling station in the Hyde Park section here, closed for lack of business, has been remodeled into a dwelling.

Males under 18 years in Germany are not entitled to smokers' ration cards and women over 25 may obtain only half rations, the department of Commerce says.

Filipinos Unhappy Under Jap Rule, Dr. Yap Declares

COLLEGE PARK, Md., June 18 (AP)—Dr. Diosdado Yap, technical advisor to the Filipino Federation of America, told more than 1,000 women attending Homemakers' day at the University of Maryland the Filipino people could never be happy under Japanese domination.

"The Filipino people, raised, nurtured and educated under the benign tutelage and influence of the United States, and whose life is practically patterned after that of the American people, will never, can never, and must never be happy under the yoke of Japanese administration," he said.

Dr. Yap hailed the admission of the Philippine commonwealth into membership of the United Nations as "unmistakable evidence of universal respect and admiration of the democracies toward the gallant men of Bataan and Corregidor."

He predicted that "when the war is won, the Filipinos will play a very important role in the economic, political and international affairs of all the countries bordering the Pacific basin."

Jackson Expected To Run for Party's Nomination for Governor

BALTIMORE, June 18 (AP)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore is expected to announce for the Democratic nomination for governor early in July, according to The Evening Sun.

Jackson withheld comment but The Evening Sun said the mayor's friends regarded the announcement as "a virtual certainty" and that he probably would make "a short but vigorous campaign."

He lost the Democratic nomination in 1938 to Governor O'Connor, who is expected by some political observers to run for reelection.

In the meantime, W. David Tighman, chairman of the Republican state central committee, issued a call for a meeting of Republican leaders Saturday.

Carnival Will Visit Cumberland

Cumberland's base ball grounds next week will be converted into one of the largest portable amusement parks in the country. It was announced today by the committee for the local ball club.

The Lawrence Greater shows, a seventy-five truck carnival, will arrive at the field late Sunday afternoon and set up its riding devices and shows for a six day engagement to raise funds for the club.

The midway attractions will include all of the latest riding devices, ten major tent shows, including two all girl revues, a Hawaiian show, freak show and an all colored minstrel.

'King's Row' Has Outstanding Cast

Judging by the demand for the services of the players in the Strand theater's forthcoming picture "King's Row," this screen adaptation of the best-seller novel boasts the outstanding cast of the year.

No less than ten of the principals were working simultaneously in other productions, with the result that production plans for ten pictures on four separate Hollywood lots were being kept constantly in a state of flux.

Key to the unique situation was Robert Cummings. Director Sam Wood considered Cummings so perfect for the part of Parris in "King's Row" that Warners delayed starting that production five weeks in order to wait for him.

Ann Sheridan was finishing up a swell part with Bette Davis and Monty Woolley in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," so Director Wood had to shoot "around" her very often.

Then there was Charles Coburn who was dividing his time between "King's Row" and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where that actor was working in "H. M. Pulham, Esquire." Judith Anderson who plays Mrs. Gordon to Coburn's Dr. Gordon, also had to be called temporarily out of another Warner film, "All

Post Poll Names 14 Ace Musicians

The Saturday Evening Post and the Red Network of the National Broadcasting Company joined hands with RKO Radio in a popular dance band poll tied in with the musical "Syncopation" starting today at the Liberty. It involved one of the most important promotions in the history of motion pictures.

The nation's dance music fans named their favorites of various popular band leader-instrumentalists through coupons carried in full-page copy in The Saturday Evening Post announcing the poll.

by ALLEN EPPES

SYNOPSIS
DIAN WESTON, attractive Ardendale girl, is jilted, and her aunt, MISS MARTHA WESTON, tries to persuade her to marry JEROME CARR, a local banker. DIAN happens to meet BILL ROLLINS, a New York artist.

CHAPTER FIVE
"STILL—straight ahead?" said Bill.

"Yes, until we come to where a dirt road turns off," Dian replied. Then she laughed softly. "This seems to be one of those rare occasions when Jilt meets Jilt—or words to that effect."

"It does, at that," said Bill. "And do you know, I'm darned glad you didn't hit some other man with your shoe. I needed you and this adventure to sort of pull me together."

"I'm glad, too," said Dian. "Funny, my meeting an artist just when I've been wondering if I could sell some of my grandfather's paintings."

"You mean he was an artist?" "That," said Dian, "is a matter of opinion. Anyway, if you're not too rushed to get back to New York, maybe you'll have a look at them."

"I don't seem to be in such a big hurry any more," said Bill. "In fact—I'm beginning to like it around here."

"Then why not come in when we get to the house and let me give you some coffee and a bite to eat? I'd like to make up for the hospitality you didn't get from Claire."

"I'd like that," said Dian. "It sounds damned cozy." He chuckled. "I'm really enjoying myself. Funny, isn't it, being jilted and still able to enjoy oneself?"

"Funny—and nice," said Dian. "Shows the stuff we're made of," said Bill.

Dian glanced back of them. She saw a car drawing nearer—a car that was of the sedan order.

"Goodness gracious!" she exclaimed. "I believe that's Aunt Martha. Hurry! I don't want to be interrupted with now I've gone this far. I can face things better with the spirit of Grandfather Weston to back me up."

Bill gave the car more gas. "Do you know what all this reminds me of?" he asked. "I mean your hitting me—both of us being jilted—all that?"

"No, I don't," Dian admitted. "What does it remind you of?"

"Some of the short stories I've illustrated," said Bill. "I used to read them and think the writers were crazy, convinced that such things never really happened in real life. And now, look at us!"

"Too bad you aren't a writer instead of an artist," said Dian. "Then you could write a story."

"Maybe I'll tell a writer about it when I get back to New York," Bill said. "And get a contract to illustrate the yarn he writes." He again glanced at Dian. "I'd insist upon one thing, however."

"What's that?"

"That he make his heroine look just like you."

"Thank you," said Dian. "That's an awfully nice thing to say."

"And sincere, too," said Bill. Then, suddenly, "Say, isn't it clouding up?"

"I believe it is," said Dian. "The sun's disappeared altogether."

"A quick thunderstorm would add to the story," said Bill. "Only an open car's not so good in a downpour."

"We can make shelter, if you hurry."

"Then here goes!" The car sped on. "They're coming out to look for you, won't they?"

"Probably. My Aunt Martha and Jerome—no doubt."

"Another character for the story. Who's Jerome?"

"He's the town banker," said Dian. "I've known him ever since

"Funny, isn't it, being jilted and still able to enjoy yourself?"

I was in pigtails. He thinks he wants to marry me, but I think he'd be a better husband for my aunt."

"What does she think about it?"

"She doesn't agree with me. She keeps after me to marry him. That's one of the reasons I wanted to get away," Dian again glanced behind them. "Oh, Bill, hurry!" she cried. "I do believe that IS Miss Aggie's sedan. She took Aunt Martha to a meeting, and—"

"She knows where you are going?" Bill cut in.

"Yes, I left a note," said Dian. "I had to. I couldn't go off without leaving something behind. Aunt Martha and Jerome would have the sheriff and a posse out searching for me."

"What did you say in the note?"

"Nothing but a few words about how I wanted to get off by myself to think," said Dian. "She knows how I used to go out to the farm when I was upset. Only I had Grandfather then."

Bill looked at her admiringly, and smiled.

"Pucky little Dian," he said very softly.

Dian sighed contentedly. She was glad Bill Rollins was there with her. He made her feel comfortable, protected, cared for.

Bill gave the roadster still more gas.

It sped off into the distance like a sleek, well-trained animal.

But the people in the sedan behind Dian and Bill were not Miss Martha Weston and Miss Aggie.

Miss Martha and her friend were still back in Ardendale, energetically knitting socks and sweaters and helmets for the Royal Air Force—knitting and discussing whether or not the meeting should come to an end because of the threatening storm.

The people in the sedan were Claire Lester and Paul Peters.

And they were eloping.

Claire, red-haired, green-eyed, slender and breath-takingly lovely; Paul, wiry, tanned to a mahogany color, straight black hair, and with hands that showed brown and strong upon the wheel of the car. Two good-looking people, speeding through the night, on their way to be married, and for the moment not saying very much to each other.

It was Claire who finally broke the silence.

"Poor Bill," she said, and sighed.

"This is hardly the time and place to say 'poor Bill,'" said Paul.

"Serves him right—trying to steal my girl the moment my back is turned."

"Don't be silly, Paul," Claire said. "Bill didn't try to steal me."

"Oh, then you mean you tried to steal him?"

"Of course not," Claire was thoughtful. "But he was terribly fascinating up in New York when I posed for him." She gave Paul a quick look. "Did you read the story my picture illustrated?"

"No. Sorry. My work as a construction engineer in the wilds of the West Indies left little time for reading; that is, for reading anything but books and blueprints about engineering. I'll bet you made a swell looking heroine."

"The illustrations were good," said Claire. "Bill's really an artist of note, you know."

"Really?"

"Some of his things have been in the Cosmopolitan. He also illustrated a Good Housekeeping serial last year."

"Really?"

"Do stop saying 'really' in that perfectly silly way!"

"What do you want me to do, go into ecstasies over a man who almost married you?" said Paul.

"Well, I can't. Where's that justice of the peace you told me about?"

"You remember him," Claire said. "He lives out just the other side of Dian Weston's old farm. There's a dirt road—a sort of short-cut—and—"

"And we'll need a short-cut," Paul said. "That rain's getting nearer every moment. I don't relish driving along in a downpour."

"Neither do I," said Claire. (To Be Continued)

Intelligent Wife Works To Assure Success of Mate

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

All women are endowed with a priceless gift known as feminine intuition, and with this, every sensible woman works her domestic miracles.

The great he-man would raise the roof if he felt he were being obedient; often he's docility itself without realizing it. Convinced her husband has the makings of success, the little woman often pulls the strings that lead to fame and fortune. Such was the case of the Hylans of New York city.

As kids they lived on adjacent farms in Green county, New York. They went to school together; they fell in love. They were married and set up housekeeping in a little flat in Brooklyn. At this time, young Hylan was a locomotive stoker on the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad. But Mariam Louise, his wife, felt he was destined for bigger things. "You've got to study law," she insisted.

Gives Wife Full Credit

"And give up my job as stoker?" the future mayor of New York demanded.

"There's such things as night schools and you can work out your problems between times on the train."

Everything in that little flat in Brooklyn was bent toward the goal of making John Hylan a lawyer.

In his biography he gave his wife full credit: "She actually prepared my lessons herself," he wrote, "helped write out problems, answers and lessons for me to study on my engine."

And so he graduated in law and began the long, uphill climb that ended in the mayoralty. His wife was his inspiration. She kept alight the torch of his ambition; she helped make his career, as he was the first to admit.

Best Type of Wife

With all this helping, she was the best type of wife. Their home was comfortable, even when they were poor—the sort of place in which a man could relax, plan for achievement, and work; the sort of haven every man dreams of when he marries.

When Mrs. Hylan died, though she was almost 75 years of age, she was still doing helpful things for her family. Her beloved husband had passed away. She was no longer well but instead of resting, as she had been urged to do by family and physician, she continued to carry on. She had gone to get her grand-daughter home from kindergarten, when she was stricken. As her friends say, it was the way she would have wanted to go. But for a man to accept cooperation from his wife and grasp the helping hand up the ladder of success, he must be endowed with a distinct gift. He's got to respect his wife's judgment and be willing to confirm her faith in his gifts.

Alcoholics Anonymous Worked

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We never heard of Alcoholics Anonymous until we read about it in your column, and then we had a wholly wrong impression of the work done. We thought it some kind of high-priced liquor cure. It was a liquor cure all right, but did not cost us a penny for curing the man of our family of a habit he seemed unable to control. He had lost two positions, the children were afraid of him when he drank, and I was on the verge of asking for a divorce.

Then I read the answer to a woman's letter in your column and decided on one more attempt to save my husband. It worked. He has not had a drop to drink for four months, and we're all happy. I feel like carrying a banner through the streets of our city and urging everyone who is a victim of John Barleycorn to join a chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous.

HAPPY WIFE

I've written so much about Alcoholics Anonymous in this column that I supposed everyone of my readers knew about the magnificent work it's doing. It doesn't cost a cent, and is open to all creeds and classes. It's a circle of helpful good fellowship. Any victim of alcohol should join this organization. I'll be glad to put you in touch with the proper authorities if you will send me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope.

Comment on Letter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

You recently printed a letter from "Claire," who says she comes from a family of "old-fashioned folks, and who wonders whether a girl can be innocent and also modern and popular.

I'm a young man who has lived rather a hard life among hard-crusted people, working in such places as oil fields, construction camps and ranches. I've ridden freight-trains too. In these places a tough shell is a necessity, but I've always believed that fine ideals mean a finer life.

I've known my share of girls, most of them good girls. But when the one woman comes into my life I hope she'll be one who has saved her deepest love for the man she marries, and one whom a man can always respect, love and trust. Often I've felt doubts, but "Claire" has shown me there are still really fine women for one of whom a man would gladly work and fight to give a good home.

Her letter has helped me and I hope my letter will help her and others who feel as we do.

Dear Miss Fairfax: I've been going with a girl for a year. I always thought she was one of the finest girls I ever knew. We never quarreled until after I proposed. I knew she had been corresponding with two boys during our courtship but didn't mind.

However, after she accepted my proposal I received a letter from her saying she has received proposals from these boys and was considering the three of us. That letter just about killed all the love I had for her, and I can't seem to get back the old feeling.

She accuses me of things I don't do. I know I've never dated another girl since I've (Continued on Page 10, Col. 3)

Detroit Beats Yankees again by 3-1 Score

Virgil Trucks Lets Champions Down With Four Hits

Tigers Make Six Hits but Turn Them into Trio of Runs

DETROIT, June 18 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers, who refuse to be awed by the Yankees' reputation, stopped the world champions again today 3 to 1 as they combined two productive innings with the four-hit flailing of Virgil Trucks.

The Tigers collected only six hits themselves off Spud Chandler, but they paid off on those blows. Pinky Higgins, whose two doubles were the biggest contributions to the Detroit scoring, hit one of them to open the second inning. After two were out, Trucks rolled a grounder to Frank Crosetti and Buddy Hassett dropped the third sacker's low throw. Higgins went to third on the play and scored when Billy Hitchcock pushed a single to center.

After two outs in the third, Ned Harris singled, Higgins doubled again to give the Tigers the lead and Jimmy Bloodworth singled him home with a final run.

From there on, the Tigers couldn't get a man on base, but the Yankees did little better against Trucks, who was facing them for the first time this season.

White Sox Take Over Sixth Place

Trade Places with Athletics for Third Time in Three Days

CHICAGO, June 18 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics traded places in the American League standings for the third time in three days today when the combined five-hit pitching of Buck Ross and Joe Hayes put the Chicagoans back in sixth place with a 7 to 2 victory. It also gave them the series, two games to one.

The Sox's two youthful infielders, Don Kolloway and Bob Kennedy, led the 11-hit attack against Jack Knott, Al Shirley and Herman Besse with a double and two singles apiece.

Ross pitched two-hit shutout ball until the eighth, when he tried and allowed three hits which enabled the A's to close in, 3 to 2. Rookie Leo Wells, batted for Ross and singled in two runs with the bases loaded in a four-run Sox eighth.

Title Fight for Joe Louis Is Indefinite Now

Champion Must Complete Basic Army Training

Brown Bomber Ordered to Replacement Training Center in Kansas

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Prospects of another title fight for Joe Louis Barrow faded into the indefinite future today as the army decreed that the heavyweight champion must complete his basic military training forthwith.

Secretary Stimson announced that Louis had been ordered to a replacement training center and added that, until his period of intensive soldiering there was completed, "appearances other than those strictly in behalf of the armed forces will not be undertaken."

Stimson did not disclose where Louis would undergo this training, but in New York the Army Information Office for the second Corps Area said the heavyweight champion would leave tomorrow for Ft. Riley, Kan.

Normally basic training requires thirteen weeks, but Louis is credited with having met some of the requirements since he was inducted into the army more than four months ago.

Louis Must Finish Basic Training
Stimson told a press conference inquirer that "presumably" the question whether Louis would be permitted to make a ring appearance in defense of his title—either for his own profit or for benefit of army relief funds—would be considered after he is finished with the next stage of his military career. He dismissed as "too iffy" a question whether Louis could fight when on leave from the army.

"The many public appearances made by Louis since his induction have made it impossible for him to be accorded the same privileges of training that are available to other soldiers," the secretary said, reading from a statement.

"That is unfair to him and to the army."
Officials declined to enlarge on the secretary's statement, but there were hints of a firm intention to take the champion out of the limelight and accord him much the same treatment as his less renowned fellow soldiers.

Stimson's newly announced policy appeared to leave the way open for Louis to continue exhibitions he has been giving recently in army camps, but whether these appearances actually would continue was not stated.

Jacobs Plea Is Ignored
A plea by Mike Jacobs, promoter of many of the champion's title bouts, that Louis be permitted to fight to raise funds for a $116,000 income tax payment due June 15 was ignored.

In New York's boxing circles, there was considerable speculation over the possibility, remote as it may be, that arrangements might be made for Louis to defend his championship in September.

Jacobs said he would be ready to promote a Louis fight any time the army gave the go-ahead signal but refused to venture an opinion as to when that might be.

"A war is on," said Jacobs, "and I don't know just what I'll do. That's up to the army. I have a deal on with Bob Pastor to meet Joe but if Louis is permitted to fight this fall, I might try to get permission from the army to match Joe with Billy Conn again."

Conn also is in the army, stationed at Fort Jay on Governors Island.

In certain army circles, however, it was regarded as highly improbable that Louis would defend his championship again while the war is on.

VAGRANCY WINS AQUEDUCT FEATURE
NEW YORK, June 18 (AP)—William Woodward's champion three-year old filly, vagrancy, galloped to victory at Aqueduct today in the Lady Capulet purse, feature event of an exciting afternoon which saw a daily double payoff of $1,405.40 establish a New York record.

Vagrancy, winner of the Pimlico and Coaching Club Oaks, beat five other fillies of her age by six lengths, stepping the mile and one-sixteenth in 1:44 3-5 and paying $4.50 as the favorite. Lotopis saved the placed by a length and a half from Smiles.

But the excitement came earlier when Dusty Man won the opener at $198.90 for $2. Then Ballyharry, a favorite, took the second half of the $1,405.40 daily double, breaking the New York mark of $899.10 for a double double payoff at the same track a year ago. Thirty ticket holders shared in the record payoff.

Only one ticket was sold on Dusty Man and the two "field" horses in the second half. Had either Time Svelte or Prince Belito won the second race, the double would have paid approximately four times more than the American record of $10,772.40, set when Joy Bet and Merry Caroline clicked at Washington Park, Aug. 14, 1939.

Pitched Battle Features Game Which Dodgers Take from Cards

Medwick Knocked Down in Tussle which Sees Brooklyn Win 5-2

By JUDSON BAILEY
BROOKLYN, June 18 (AP)—The Hatfields and the McCoys of the National League—the Brooklyn Dodgers and the St. Louis Cardinals—fought with their fists again tonight to no decision, but the Dodgers emerged from the riotous struggle with a 5 to 2 baseball victory.

They turned the trick with a three-run rally in the eighth inning, snapping a seven-game winning streak for St. Louis and putting the Cardinals 5½ games behind the leaders.

It was difficult to tell whether the 21,228 fans who turned out for the opening tussle of this crucial five-game series were more excited by the Dodgers' triumph, the fifth of the season without a defeat for Lefty Larry French, or the melee in the sixth inning when players of both clubs attempted a pitched battle near second base.

This was the second anniversary of Joe Medwick's beating by Pitcher Bob Bowman of the Cards, the incident which opened a never-ceasing feud that has flared into fighting between the clubs at intervals ever since.

It was Medwick who touched off the explosion tonight. After walking to open the sixth he tried to race to second when Catcher Walker Cooper let one of Max Lanier's pitches slip through him. Cooper recovered in time to throw to shortstop Martin Marion, who waited at second as Medwick slid in with spikes high. As soon as Medwick was waved out, Marion pounced on him and as they arose from the ground. Second Baseman Frank Crespi rushed up and knocked Medwick down.

Players poured out of both dug-outs and ran from their positions all over the field to mill and push for nearly ten minutes before the umpires were able to clear them away.

Medwick and Crespi were banished from the game by the umpires, and Outfielder Dixie Walker of the Dodgers had to withdraw because of an injury to his left leg, which he twisted during the rum-pus.

At the time the Cardinals were leading by a 2 to 1 count, but Lefty Lanier was so unsettled by the affair that he gave a walk and two singles to let the Brooks tie the score and had to be replaced by John Beazley, who ultimately was charged with the loss.

When play was resumed Lanier

BATTERS KNOW WHEN THEY ARE GOING TO HIT, WOLFERT SAYS

By IRA WOLFERT

North American Newspaper Alliance
NEW YORK, June 18 — As was recorded recently in this leaning tower of learning, it takes about three-fifths of a second for a big-league ball to go from pitcher to batter, somewhat less for a fast one steaming along in fog. In that split of a moment, a great many more things happen to the batter than seems reasonable. In fact, for the duration of the ball's journey or until, as the song said, after the ball is over, the batter leads the life of a changed man.

"You mean my sugar pie?" cried one big league wife who heard this from us. "No such luck, dearie."

Know In Advance
But it is true nevertheless. For one, the batter frequently knows before he moves the bat that he is going to hit the ball. Tommy Henrich mentioned this casually after he'd hit an eleventh-inning home run to break up a game the other day. "I knew while the guy was throwing it," he said, "that I was going to hit it and it was going to go a mile and when it did I wasn't surprised." And Joe DiMaggio said, "well, it's fact. Sometimes you do know. Of course, every time you swing the bat, you think you've got a chance to hit it and think how to do it, where to put your bat and so forth. But sometimes you never think how to hit the ball or about your bat at all, but just think, 'this is a hit for me.' And when that happens, that's when you always get a good one."

We do not like to seem hysterical, but this is one of the great mysteries of the life of our times, a dark, violent and inscrutable event taking place hundreds of times daily all over the country, with sunlight illuminating it, generally, and thousands of eyes staring at it, occasionally, and only one man so much as suspecting its existence. It is like a man knowing he will get a letter as the author is thinking or writing it.

Feller's Screen Curve
The mystery and darkness and violence of it didn't occur to us until we started talking to Vinnie Smith, a Norfolk sailor boy who caught for Pittsburgh last season and has been catching Bob Feller this season.

"Curves is like fingerprints," Vinnie said. "I never saw two pitchers who threw the same curve. The big leaguers don't throw many curves unless they can screen it the way Feller does his. Feller's curve comes at you just like any one of his throws, like a locomotive bearing down head on, and then when it gets about four feet away, it breaks sharp. If I tried to show you with my wrist how sharp it broke, I'd break my wrist."

But it's impossible for a bat to be re-adjusted in the one-twenty-fifth of a second it takes a ball, traveling at maximum velocity, to go four feet. "I guess so," Smith said. Then, how does anybody ever manage to get a hit off Feller?

"I wish I knew, but they do. Not often, just every once in a while." Do they outguess him and put the bat where they think he's going to put the ball? "That guess-hitter stuff is a lot of baloney. I know Jimmy Feller is a guess hitter, but it stands to reason if the batter tries to outguess the pitcher, he'll lose more times than he'll win. The pitcher is in the driver's seat. He's making the offensive and they tell us in the navy the best way to meet an attack is with an attack. If you're just standing there trying to figure out what the pitcher is going to do and then make your move, you're altogether on the defensive.

"No, the best way to get a hit is to step up there and hit it." So there is the mystery. "The best way to get a hit is to step up there and hit it," is no solution of the mystery, just a description of it. The solution lies somewhere in that split of a fraction of a second during which the ball leaves the pitcher's hand and makes its presence known to the batter. Some way, some how, darkly and inscrutably, the ball gets a message to the batter from fifty feet away with the speed of lightning, telling him where it's going and when it will get there and the batter's whole mind and body reacts to that message with such violent clarity that he even has leisure left over in which to anticipate joyfully his triumph.

Such an event is not in the ordinary way of things. He must be a changed man leading a changed life for the duration of the moment. "Not my sugar pie," the big-league wife said sadly. "Nothing can change him."

The Bird infielder passed physical examinations at the navy recruiting office an enlistment was to be sworn in as a member of the armed forces. Navy officials said it was undecided whether Conway would leave tonight or early tomorrow for the Norfolk training base.

Conway was accepted as yeoman, second class. Navy officials said he will receive the usual training at Norfolk, following which he will be assigned to duty.

New Job for Crain

DALLAS, TEXAS, June 18 (AP)—The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor halted temporarily the great gridiron career of Cowboy Jack Crain, but he's coming back as a guest artist.

Finishing three stellar years at the University of Texas, he enlisted in December to help the Naval Air Cadet Selection Board sign up prospective cadets.

Now he's accepted an invitation to play with the college all-star team, meeting the professional Chicago Bears in August.

$90,000 Tax Loss If Fair Down Here

Local Association Officials Comment on Request of Transportation Head

Commenting on an Associated Press dispatch which quoted Joseph B. Eastman, defense transportation director, as requesting that all state and county fairs be deferred for the duration of the war, officials of the Cumberland Fair Association last evening declared that revenues amounting to approximately $90,000 will be lost by the federal, state and county governments if the Cumberland fair and race meeting is forced to shut down in August.

Would Affect Others
Harry A. Manley, general manager of the association, pointed out that the Cumberland Fair is classified as a county fair with pari-mutuel betting privileges for racing, and if a closing order becomes effective it also would include the state fair which is conducted annually at Timonium. The Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair at Marlboro and the Harford County Fair at Bel Air, race meets are held by these four associations annually in conjunction with their county fairs. The races and fair are held at different times in Hagerstown, Manley pointed out.

In his request, which came from Washington, Eastman asked that civilians defer any mass movement not closely connected with the war effort. "Postpone all state and county fairs," he said.

Defer "Mass Movements"
While the defense transportation director failed to mention anything in regard to race meetings, his request to defer "any mass movements not closely connected with the war effort" is interpreted as including races connected with agricultural exhibits. Then too, a mass movement to the races is not looked upon as having any connection with the "war effort."

Manley said, however, that preparations will be continued to stage the fair and ten-day race meeting which opens Tuesday, August 4, until he receives instructions to do otherwise. The fair and race meeting has been held annually without interruption since 1924.

Frank A. Wolfpoth, auditor for the Cumberland Fair Association, estimated that the loss in revenue received from the Cumberland track alone would aggregate $90,000 to the federal, state and county governments if the 1942 fair and race meet is cancelled. He based his figures on the amount of taxes paid out last year by the association.

$65,000 from New Tax
A new five per cent tax on pari-mutuel wagers would net the federal government $65,000, based on the $1,300,000 betting handle here in 1942, Wolfpoth stated. This tax was not in effect last year.

A ten per cent federal tax on admissions in 1941 netted the government $2,811 at Fairgo. The state's share a year ago was $21,434, of which $17,605 was received from the state tax on pari-mutuels in excess of $500,000; $2,300 was received on a state tax on admissions and a license fee of five per cent netted the Maryland State Fair Association $1,529.50. The county would lose its annual license fee of $500.

Wolfpoth pointed out that federal, state and county taxes amounting to $24,745 were paid last year by the local fair association.

Federal Loss $67,811
Based on 1941 figures and including $65,000 for new federal taxes, the federal government's loss would be $67,811 if Fairgo fails to operate this year. The state loss is estimated at $21,434 and the county $500.

32 Are Examined At Ear Clinic

17 Boys and 15 Girls Attend Clinic Conducted by Dr. Breitstein

Thirty-two school children were examined yesterday in city hall by Dr. M. L. Breitstein, of Baltimore, at the hard-of-hearing clinic which is sponsored under the joint auspices of the Maryland State Department of Health, the American Legion and the Allegany County Board of Education.

Funds for the clinic are provided by Port Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, and its auxiliary unit.

The children—seventeen boys and fifteen girls—were chosen from the audiometer reading tests which were conducted in the Allegany county public schools.

Miss Sadie Gladwin, supervisor of nurses in the Allegany County Health Department, said that the clinics are sponsored every two years by the board of education.

Two of the thirty who had made appointments were absent and four additional persons were examined. The clinic opened at 9 a. m. and was concluded at 3:30 p. m.

RUBBER COLLECTION HERE NOW TOTALS 41,000 POUNDS

The scrap rubber collection in Allegany county soared closer to 50,000 pounds yesterday when Robert B. MacBeth, local chairman of the campaign, announced 41,000 pounds already collected and stored at bulk plants.

Service station operators still have more rubber at their establishments, MacBeth said, adding trucks are continuing to collect the vital war material. One cent a pound is being paid for the scrap.

According to an estimate, approximately 120,000 pounds of scrap rubber is available in the county with about 40,000 pounds of that amount stored in junk yards. MacBeth, Wednesday urged junk dealers to sell their rubber as a contribution to the campaign rather than keep it on hand.

Local Soldier Will Be Tried in November For Highway Holdup

Pvt. Mullen H. Smith, 22, this city, will be tried in November in Washington county circuit court on a charge of holdup with a deadly weapon.

Smith was returned from the A. P. Hill Reservation in Virginia and committed to jail in default of $25,000 bond by Magistrate Harry E. Snyder to await court action in November. Pvt. Smith was arrested May 26 in Frostburg by Trooper Joseph White.

He was charged with holding up Henry Shapiro, Baltimore salesman, near Boonsboro. Shapiro's gasoline ration card, his car and other credentials were stolen, state police said.

Alleged Draft Dodger Is Held For Federal Jury

Marshall Willison Failed To Return Questionnaire, Officials Declare

Marshall Freeland Willison, 27, this city, was committed to the county jail yesterday morning in default of $1,000 bond for action of the federal grand jury in Baltimore on a charge of violating the Selective Service act.

According to statements made at yesterday's hearing Willison registered under terms of the Selective Service act while he resided at LaPlata, Md. The LaPlata draft board sent Willison a questionnaire on or about April 8, 1941, and he was allowed until April 15, 1941, to return the form properly filled out.

Failed To Return Questionnaire
Willison failed to do so and later came to Cumberland. The LaPlata board sent him numerous letters asking for him to return the completed questionnaire but Willison admitted yesterday he failed to answer their requests.

United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson asked him why he did not comply with the board's request and Willison said he objected to some of the questions contained in the form. After more than a year's lapse of time the LaPlata board placed the case in the hands of Bernard J. Flynn, United States district attorney, who ordered Willison's arrest.

Married and Has One Child
He was apprehended yesterday by a special agent of the FBI and Howard P. Loughrie, deputy United States marshal. Willison, an employee of the B. and O. railroad, is married and has one child. He told Commissioner Wilson yesterday that he was willing to fill out the questionnaire now but the commissioner said the matter was out of his hands.

Garrett Child Lost for 30 Hours Is Found Sleeping on River Bank

James Smith, 5, Wanders from New Germany Home Tuesday Morning

Badly scratched and suffering painfully from insect bites, James Smith, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Smith, New Germany, Garrett county, was found asleep about four miles from his home yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by two Baltimore campers twenty nine and one-half hours after he had wandered from his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moore, who found the child, in a sitting position sleeping just a few feet from the edge of Savage river about a mile and a half up the stream from Merrill, while they were fishing in the stream, told authorities that they didn't know that a child was a boy so young should be out in the woods by himself. They said he was badly scratched and, except for a torn blouse the child was naked.

Moore said they returned to a house that they had passed earlier in the day and informed Mrs. Elwood Merrill, who resided there, and Lawrence Blanche, an evangelist minister, that there was a child up the stream asleep and asked them if they knew who it could be. Mrs. Merrill and Blanche immediately found the boy and returned him to his parents, who were just returning from a search through the woods with a large group of persons, headed by three state troopers.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who reported the child missing yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, after searching all night, told state police that they had gone to Grantsville Wednesday morning to register for sugar and had left the child with three older brothers and a sister. The brothers, Delbert, 10, Cecil, 12 and Raymond, 16, according to the Smiths, left home at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to repair a road leading to the farm house, but instructed the child to stay with the daughter who was doing the house work. The daughter told officers that she did not see the child after her brothers left and assumed they had taken him along.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith told officers that they began to search for the child as soon as they returned home, knowing him to be feeble they didn't think he would be able to walk so far and hoped to find him before dark.

Taken to Physician
The child was taken to a Grantsville physician where he was treated for scratches and insect bites. He was described as "scratched and bruised" but was permitted to return home with his parents.

State Troopers who conducted the search were Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch, Troopers G. S. Dunlap and G. M. Browning. Officers said they were aided in the search by approximately seventy-five Garrett county residents.

An item appearing in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, yesterday morning will be of interest to the many friends of James B. Craig, reported on the Cumberland News before being inducted into the army a year ago last April. Incidentally it was the first direct word from Jim since he left this country in February. The item follows:

In the city editor's mail: "Dear Boss—In case you've forgotten, I'm the guy you hired last December. I was supposed to report for work December 21 at 1 o'clock, the day after receiving my discharge from the army. I walked into the office one night and you hired me—remember?"

"Well, the reason I didn't get to work on time is that I'm in Australia."

"Thinking of this slight discrepancy, so to speak, between Pittsburgh and Australia set me to chucking tonight (although it's not without its wry side, too). At any rate, I thought you might get a kick out of it and you do deserve an explanation for my failing to show up."

"You never did find out whether I could write or not, but you will have to admit I do get around. Regards, CORP. JAMES B. CRAIG."

Municipal authorities in every city in the state owe it to their citizens and to the nation at large to do everything possible to prevent fire losses at the present time. John B. Gontum, insurance commissioner of Maryland, said in a statement released this week.

"It always is the duty of public officials to try to protect the lives and property of their citizens," he said, "but today their obligation to do so is more urgent than ever."

"Fire is one of the greatest destroyers of lives and property. Fire under control is man's (Continued on Page 16, Col. 1)

Marriage License
Laws Explained
To Kiwanians

Many Couples Never Return after Making Application, Wilson Says

The marriage license laws of Maryland, as well as those of adjoining states, were explained by William A. Wilson, marriage license clerk in the circuit clerk's office here, yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club at Central Y. M. C. A. Wilson also related many amusing incidents in connection with his work of issuing applications and licenses.

Wilson said many phone calls are received from persons who do not understand the Maryland marriage license laws and declared it was surprising the lack of knowledge most persons have about them.

Monday Busiest Day
In Maryland, Wilson told the Kiwanians, a man must be 21 years of age and the girl 18 to obtain a license without their parents' consent.

The speaker explained the forty-eight-hour waiting period law which became effective Dec. 9, 1938. Licenses cannot be issued until the following Monday when applications are made after 12 o'clock on Thursday. Wilson said, due to the court house closing at noon on Saturdays, therefore Monday is usually the busiest day, he added.

Persons obtaining marriage licenses in Maryland must be married by a minister, Wilson said, and cannot be married by a justice of the peace like they can in many states. Licenses in Maryland are only good in the county where they are obtained and are good at any time, he added, there being no time limit on either the application or use of the license.

The marriage license clerk explained that it is surprising the number of uncalled for applications which are in the office. He estimated that more than 500 couples who made applications here since the forty-eight-hour law went into effect have never called for their licenses.

Wilson explained that the forty-eight-hour waiting period can be waived by a judge of the circuit court but only to Maryland residents. He said that approximately three-fourths of out-of-town couples who come here are from Pennsylvania.

Musical Program Presented
Miss Josephine Williams and Donald Somerville presented a musical program which was enthusiastically received by the Kiwanians. Mr. Somerville sang two solos and he and Miss Williams then sang two duets with Joe Williams playing the piano accompaniments.

Earle Coby, vice president of the club, presided in the absence of President Forrest Brown, who is in Cleveland attending the International Kiwanis Convention.

Draft Boards Expect Heavy Calls for Men During Month of July

Officials of Allegany county's four draft boards expect heavy calls for men in July. Possibly more than three times as many as have been sent in previous calls.

Board officials said no married men with dependents would be included in the forthcoming calls in July. Only exceptions to this would be married men who are separated from their wives and who have no other dependents, officials said.

Gray Pleads Not Guilty to Charges of Fatal Shooting

Corriganville Man Is Held for Alleged Slaying of Neighbor

Vernon E. Gray, 36, of Corriganville, was arraigned for a hearing yesterday in trial magistrates' court and entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of shooting and fatally wounding Norman Earl Emerick, 37-year-old Celanese worker, on June 12. He was held without bond for action of the October Grand Jury, and committed to the county jail by Magistrate Frank E. Perdue.

Gray was arrested last Friday at his home in Corriganville by Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe, following an altercation in which Emerick, next door neighbor, was shot and wounded by a twelve-gauge shotgun in the hands of Gray.

Taken to Magistrate Bruce
When the sheriff arrived at the trial magistrates' court yesterday morning with Gray, he was taken to the court room of Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., for the hearing. Magistrate Bruce proceeded to put the case on his docket, which is the customary proceeding, and asked the sheriff if he wished to swear to the necessary warrant for Gray's arrest. The sheriff took the necessary oath.

Bruce proceeded to enter the names of witnesses on his docket and prepared his preliminary work for the hearing. Witnesses were assembled in his court room, and Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Gray, said the defense was ready for the hearing.

About this time one of the attaches of Trial Magistrates court informed Magistrate Bruce that State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris wanted the case heard before Magistrate Perdue.

Since the case was already docketed and the warrant sworn to, this action created some confusion and much consulting of legal books and records. Attorneys on both sides exchanged opinions and cited their views.

Returned to Jail
Finally, in view of the fact that the state's attorney did not appear in Magistrate Bruce's court room for the hearing, Magistrate Bruce placed Gray in the custody of the sheriff and ordered his return to jail. Sheriff Radcliffe took Gray to the county jail.

Attorneys on both sides again consulted and decided that the sheriff, legally, could take a prisoner before any magistrate for a hearing. Technically, the law says the nearest magistrate.

Sheriff Radcliffe was then asked to return the prisoner for hearing before Magistrate Perdue.

After Gray was returned to the magistrate's court, Magistrate Perdue, upon instructions from State's Attorney Harris, issued a warrant to Deputy Sheriff David M. Steele for the arrest of Gray on a charge of murder.

Pleads Not Guilty
When asked if he plead guilty or not guilty to the charge, Gray replied, "not guilty." Asked if he wanted a hearing, Gray replied, "Yes."

The first witness called was Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner.

Dr. Corson said he examined the body on the lawn of the Gray home at 12:30 o'clock, June 12. He fixed the time of death at about 11:40 a. m. He said death was due to shock and hemorrhage. He stated Emerick had been wounded in the chest, in the region of the lower breast bone by a twelve-gauge shot gun charge, and also had a scalp wound on the side of his head which was still bleeding.

He stated he later performed an autopsy on Emerick's body and confirmed his first findings.

Dr. F. A. G. Murray was the second witness. He stated he had been summoned to the Emerick home about 11:50 a. m. and arrived there about 12 o'clock noon, the day of the shooting. Dr. Murray said he found Emerick lying face down on the Gray lawn. He stated he turned the body over and found a wound in the man's chest, "large enough to put my hand in," and a scalp wound on his head, "Emerick was dead when I arrived," he added.

Mrs. Helen Marie Emerick, 37, widow of the slain man was called to testify. She explained that she had known Gray for about five years and had lived next door to him about two years. She told the court that Gray bought the house he occupied from her husband, and there had been some difference between the two men over light fixtures removed from the house by Emerick. She explained Gray had (Continued on Page 16, Col. 5)
